What Have Women Done?
Laughing at Bandits
Weapon Against Reds
Britain in Jerusalem

By Arthur Brisbane

WOMAN SUFFRAGE in this country was 10 years old yesterday, and its opponents ask scornfully "what have women done?"

They have done many things, and most important they have made politicians ask "what do the women want?"

Women want what is right, and when they are not deceived concerning prohibition or pacifism, they are the most powerful and useful influence in politics.

If men with masks or handkerchiefs on their faces enter your house during an entertainment, pointing guns and saying "stick 'em up," don't laugh and think that it is a friendly joke. It usually is not a joke.

At a Cleveland party masked men entered and guests "tittered and laughed." One guest, Miller Wilkinson, 25-year-old student at Princeton, helped to drive out the intruders, threw one of them down, and was fatally wounded by the brother of the man whom he had seized.

The murderer told the police: "He was after my brother."

Mr. Lehman, lieutenant-governor of New York, rich and intelligent, tells others of the prosperous class that the best weapon against communism and radicalism generally is HIGH WAGES, "leading to prosperity, happiness, self respect and pride in home and country."

Mr. Lehman is right. All the alleged Russian propaganda multiplied by a thousand could not create as many dissatisfied "radicals" in this country as a year or two of depression followed by a foolish attempt to reduce wages.

Cut sixty billions a year in wages to forty billions and you would cut down prosperity by much more than twenty billions a year. It is the amount paid in wages above the bare cost of existence that creates prosperity.

A League of Nations committee appointed to watch nations exercising mandates for so-called "inferior peoples," criticises Britain severely for incompetency in connection with last year's murderous riots in Jerusalem.

The British idea was to criticise others and more or less boss the League of Nations—and criticism does not sit well on the British stomach.

Britain replies that it could not know that murders were about to be committed, or understand the intense feeling connected with Jerusalem's "wailing wall," claimed by Jews and Arabs.

Henceforth the British will limit Jewish emigration to Jerusalem, to avoid further friction.

A criminal develops an ingenious plan for extorting money. Following the disappearance of a young girl, the would-be extortionist telegraphed the girl's father, telling him to attach $10,000 to the foot of a carrier pigeon, provided for the purpose, and release the pigeon.

The pigeon could not betray the conspirators. And if an airplane could follow it, without frightening the bird, the airplane would surely warn the conspirators.

Police think the schemers know nothing about the girl and are merely speculating on her disappearance.

Ardent drys will learn with regret that Mrs. Corinne Roosevelt Robinson, sister of President Roosevelt, long and earnest advocate of temperance, denounces the prohibition law. She says "an unenforceable law is a dangerous spot for graft and corruption."

She will run as a delegate to the Republican convention in New York state, that she may have a chance to tell what she thinks.

Under old German law, much older than war, the flying machine, submarine or even the railroad, a man or woman living together, not married, are called "unmoral and a public nuisance."

The law has not changed officially, but court decisions tend to a lenient view of what was once unforgiveable. A high German court says "offenses against marriage concern only those involved," which means, they are none of the public's business.

Marriages in the rural districts of the Irish Free State are diminishing. Once Irish girls came to this country, worked, saved and went back to marry farmers that they had known in childhood. Their savings helped the country.

Now they come, stay and marry here, returning, if at all, to visit their parents.

The loss for Ireland is a gain for the United States.

CLEAR BROOKS IN FAIRFAX DISASTER

Skipper Not to Blame for Loss of 50 in Pinthis Crash, Says Inspector-General Hoover

Washington, Aug. 27 (AP)—Capt. Archie H. Brooks of the Steamer Fairfax was absolved today by the Commerce Department of responsibility for the collision last June between his vessel and the tanker Pinthis in Massachusetts bay.

Dickerson H. Hoover, supervising inspector-general of the steamboat inspection service, announced a thorough investigation at Boston and Norfolk had failed to establish evidence substantiating charges against Capt. Brooks.

Fifty lives were lost in the disaster.

Summarizing the conclusions reached from the investigation, Hoover said:

"After examining thoroughly 21 witnesses, this board failed to establish evidence substantiating any of the four charges; therefore, the accused master of the steamship Fairfax, Archie H. Brooks, is acquitted of the charges, and the case is closed."

Capt. Brooks was charged with making excessive speed during a fog, with unskillfulness and negligence.

Concerning the charge of unskillfulness, the report said the evidence substantiated entries in the log that:

"On sighting the Pinthis crossing from starboard to port, the master of the Fairfax ordered helm hard aport, which directs the vessel's bow to starboard, and reversed engine full speed astern, which, while backing with a right-hand propeller, would naturally cut the ship's stern to port, causing the vessel to respond quicker to port helm."

"It is evident," the report added, "had the master executed any other maneuver than what he did both vessels would have been sunk and possibly all lives lost."

HUNT 2 GIRLS AS DECOYS IN HOLDUP PLOT

Man Under Arrest Is Held in $10,000 Bail; Warrants Out for Three Others

With orders to smash a ring that is alleged to have preyed on Boston clubmen and women, police today launched a search for two girls, living in the Back Bay, and another man, following arraignment of Charles Ransford, 28, who pleaded not guilty to a charge of extortion.

Ransford was held in $10,000 bail by Judge Adlow in municipal court for hearing on Sept. 5. He is alleged to have obtained money from Robert Parker, employe of a Back Bay night club.

Police say they know the names of three other persons who are being sought and that the two girls have an apartment on Pelham st.

Warrants for all three were issued to Inspectors George Augustus and William Crowley of the headquarters bureau of criminal investigation.

Besides working their alleged "racket" among members and employes of several Boston clubs, they are declared by police to have victimized prominent residents of Chicago, Buffalo and Albany.

The girls were allegedly used as "lures" to trap men in compromising circumstances so that they were glad to pay to keep things quiet, even though they were innocent of any wrongdoing, according to the police.

Parker told the police he was hailed on the Common and engaged in conversation by a man who suddenly accused him of being in league with women of questionable repute. When he declared his innocence, the stranger summoned a man who was standing nearby and who was introduced as "the sergeant," but who in reality was Ransford.

Because he was married, and realizing he was in a clever trap, Parker paid $50 and promised to get $100 more. He told the police and Ransford was trapped and arrested in front of the Public Library.

18 Police Foil Holdup and Arrest Trio

Following receipt of a mysterious "tip," 18 policemen were dispatched to the scene of a holdup planned to take place today at Portland and Sudbury sts., and captured three men, one of whom was armed.

A fourth man was arrested later on Hanover st. A girl, believed to have been a confederate, escaped.

The "tip," which said that a messenger of the George D. Wetherill & Co. paint concern, of 69 Portland st., was to be robbed as he approached the store at 1 o'clock, in accordance with his daily custom, was received last night by Deputy Supt. James McDevitt.

He ordered eight inspectors from headquarters, and ten patrolmen from Joy st. division, including two sergeants—all of them wearing bullet-proof vests—to the scene.

Besides watching the approaches to the paint store, the police kept their eyes on an automobile which was seen parked at a hydrant, as the "tip" had said it would be.

A girl was seen entering the store and a few minutes later when she emerged, she apparently signaled to a passerby. Police then closed in and took three suspicious characters into custody.

These men are said to answer the descriptions of the holdup men given in the advance information received by Deputy Supt. McDevitt. They were taken to headquarters for grilling.

The store messenger did not make his daily trip, having been warned by the police.

LODGE IN SPEECH BACKING DRAPER CALLS BUTLER VACILLATING

AIDS MOVE TO DRIVE OUT OLD GUARD

Famous Senator's Grandson Reopens Old Split in Ranks of Party

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

William M. Butler, opposing Eben S. Draper for the G. O. P. nomination for United States senator, was tagged as a vacillating candidate," by Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., in his first public utterance for Draper, whose candidacy he advocates.

Introducing his friend over the radio, the grandson of the late senator declared that Draper "is no rake and solid that you will never find him trimming his sails to every passing political breeze."

The championing by Lodge of the Hopedale man, together with the endorsements given Draper by Christian A. Herter, Herbert Hoover's personal friend, former Speaker Leverett Saltonstall, Sinclair Weeks, son of former Senator John W. Weeks, and ex-State Treasurer James Jackson, served notice that the young wing of the party was out in earnest to oust the "Old Guard," from control of the party machine.

COOLIDGE VS. LODGE

It also meant that the breach in the Republican ranks which reached its height with the humiliation of Senator Lodge at the Cleveland convention by the Butler-Coolidge forces, had been reopened with renewed bitterness.

Candidate Draper challenged his opponent to tell the Republican voters what he did for the workers of Massachusetts, particularly in the textile industry, when he, Butler, was chairman of the Republican National Committee from 1924 to 1928, and as an appointed senator from December, 1924, to March, 1925.

He put forth the challenge in the form of a suggested question for the voters to ask. It was based on Butler's assertion at the Somerville Republican rally committee outing last Saturday that since 1923 the number of spindles in Massachusetts cotton mills had declined from 12,000,000 to 8,000,000, representing a loss of $24,000,000 annually from the payrolls of the textile workers.

TURNS GUNS ON BUTLER

Draper then turned his guns on the Butler proposal for a 48-hour week by constitutional amendment. He contended that there is nothing new in the proposal, that it was "brought forth as far back as 1922 before a committee of the Massachusetts legislature by the Arkwright Club—an organization of textile manufacturers of which my opponent was for three years president, and a director at the time—when it was seeking to repeal the 48-hour law in Massachusetts."

The speaker admitted that the mills of the South have a lower wage scale than the mills here.

"But my opponent is not suggesting a constitutional amendment to require a universal wage scale," he stressed.

"LOST FOR ISSUE"

Continuing, Draper said:

"I cannot take this issue of my opponent's very seriously under these considerations. I believe thoroughly in the principle of the 48-hour week. Other states have recognized the leadership of Massachusetts in labor legislation. And many, by educational means, have followed its example on the 48-hour law and raised their standards to meet those here.

"I believe it is inevitable that the south will come to it, but it is no more possible to solve cycles of business depression by constitutional amendment, in my opinion, that it is to bring about true temperance by the same method."

Draper contended that his opponent is at a loss for an issue, that his advisers are telling him it would be fatal for him to discuss prohibition.

"Of which we are all aware," he commented.

"His sudden espousal of a national 48-hour week by constitutional amendment, which certainly should not fool the workers of Massachusetts, is made to look as if he had discovered something new," he declared.

Lodge, in his presentation speech, backed Draper's opinion on the futility of trying to bring prosperity through legislation.

"To my mind," Lodge declared, "the current talk of a federal amendment to the constitution to improve labor conditions in Massachusetts is a type of election promise which rings pretty hollow when placed on the anvil of practical discussion. All the man-made laws in the world look puny when placed in contrast with the laws of economics."

DRAPER WORKER

But something helpful, the speaker continued, can be expected from a man who is a worker and takes pains. Such a man, he declared, is Draper. He bases his size-up of the candidate on his own experience as a newspaperman both in Washington and at the State House here, where he personally observed the work of Draper in the Legislature.

BUTLER JOINS CURLEY'S FIGHT FOR NAVY YARD

Both Agree Work Should Be Kept in Boston and That Adams Is All Wrong

Criticism of Secretary of the Navy Adams and the reported proposed closing of the local navy yard was voiced today by Mayor James M. Curley, who declared this is no time to talk of economy.

William M. Butler, candidate for the Republican nomination for the U. S. Senate, also protested in a letter to Secretary Adams, saying:

"The activities of the Navy Yard in Boston have already been curtailed and many men have been thrown out of work, while others are threatened.

"I have endeavored to obtain for the yard some of the work incident to the reconditioning of certain ships for Coast Guard work, but it has been determined to give this work to another yard.

"Now comes the proposal to shut the yard—and work is needed now of all times. This is a short-sighted policy."

WORK NEEDED NOW

Mayor Curley declared the yard, with its superior equipment, should be preserved above all others, adding that with business emerging from depression and winter impending, this is no time to talk economy.

The report from Washington stated that all yards on the coast, with the exception of Brooklyn and Norfolk, were to be closed.

This action, together with the disposal of shore properties acquired during the World War, it is estimated will save the government $20,000,000 annually.

"The proposition to discontinue the Boston Navy Yard," said Mayor Curley, "has been the subject of recommendation, consideration and rejection for more than a quarter of a century.

OLDEST IN COUNTRY

"The Boston Navy Yard is the oldest in the United States. It contains the most complete rope making plant to be found in any United States navy yard; also one of the best ship chandler shops and exceptional drydocking facilities.

"It is inconceivable that, with a Massachusetts man as Secretary of the Navy, the recommendation such as proposed would be permitted to receive serious consideration."

If the Navy Yard is to close, as reported in the morning newspapers today, no official word of it has been received in this city.

Official word of any change of any description in the Boston Navy Yard has come to the attention of Rear Commodore Capt. Arthur E. Abele, chief of staff at the yard, declared.

"It is difficult to conceive of the abandonment of Boston Navy Yard, from a defensive standpoint alone."

Absolve Skipper

THE SKIPPER OF THE FAIRFAX, Capt. Archie H. Brooks, was absolved today of all blame for the Pinthis crash in Massachusetts bay last June that cost 50 lives. Inspector-General Hoover of the Federal steamboat inspection service held that Brooks navigated correctly.

Somerville Woman Hurt in Crash Near Palmer

Palmer, Aug. 27 (AP)—Two persons were injured, one seriously, when a sedan operated by Russell T. Ober, assistant city clerk of Worcester, sideswiped cars owned by Lester Goodrich of Longmeadow, and Ernest M. Garland of Somerville on Boston post road at North Wilbraham today.

FLIER BURNED TO DEATH AT AIR RACES

Spectator Is Hurt as Flaming Navy Plane Crashes in Stunt After Flight

Curtiss-Reynolds Airport, Chicago, Aug. 27 (AP)—J. P. de Shazo, navy flier from Alabama, was killed, and a spectator, whose named was not learned, was injured seriously today when De Shazo's pursuit plane crashed just next to the far right bleachers of the national air races.

The crash occurred just as 17 navy planes passed the last pylon in a 50-mile speed race.

De Shazo, flying 100 feet from the ground, attempted to do a spectacular roll. The plane burst into flames as it hit the ground in front of a concession stand.

Several people, seeing De Shazo's plane rushing down, saved their lives by running.

The pilot was burned beyond recognition. He had finished third in the race.

Stunts, the thrills and the color of the National Air Races went on the air from the air today as Pilot William S. Brock of Cincinnati skimmed aloft with an announcer and the radio equipped ship in which he flew from Los Angeles in the men's non-stop derby yesterday.

Brock arrived a tentative third in the derby, pending the flight of Art Gobel, the only remaining contestant, who started at 5:10 a. m. Pacific time, today.

Goebel must cross the finish line before 5:19:06 p. m., Chicago daylight time, to take the $7,500 first prize from Wiley Post of Oklahoma City. Post made the flight in 9 hours, 9 minutes, and 4 seconds.

Eddie Schneider of Jersey City, N. J., is the youngest pilot at the field ready to take part in the meet. He is 18 and holder of the junior records for transcontinental speed both east-west and west-east.

"Tame" Stunts Are Taboo at Big Air Races

By FRANKLIN COLLIER, JR.

Chicago, Aug. 27—A good impression of exhibitions at the national air races may be had from the comment of Lieut. Alford J. Williams, crack Navy speed pilot, that only beginners and old timers are doing old-fashioned loops any more.

The first half of normal loops are common enough, but when the ships are upside down things happen and they do anything from a series of snap rolls to an inverted falling leaf.

Army fliers are putting on new maneuvers each day.

Three big army bombers, piloted by Lieut. M. Huggin, W. G. Davis and T. S. Power, did a Lufbury circle and an imitation "bursting bomb" maneuver in effective fashion. In a Lufbury circle, planes fly around and around, one behind the other in a steep bank.

The bursting bomb is a ground strafting maneuver involving a quick reversal of direction.

The bombers reversed their direction quickly in symmetrical fashion after pulling up steeply in front of the crowd.

Nationalist Planes Bomb City of Peiping

Peiping, China, Aug. 27 (AP)—Two Nationalist airplanes from Sinanfu dropped six bombs in the Partar City and the Mohammedan City today. Only one bomb exploded, inside the Chiennan Gate, but no casualties resulted.

Gen. Dawes Puffs His Pipe in Prehistoric Caves

Santander, Spain, Aug. 27 (AP)—Charles Gates Dawes put aside today the cares of his portfolio as ambassador to the Court of St. James and devoted his 65th birthday to the enjoyment of informal research into the strange doings of men who inhabited this region 10,000 to 20,000 years ago.

That the ambassador's conversations with the Duke of Alba, Spanish foreign minister, touched also upon present day matters having equally interesting aspects, was accepted in political and business circles.

The meeting of the two diplomats was declared to be without political significance.

The famous Dawes' underslung pipe puffed its way through the Altamira caves near Santander, where prehistoric man painted the walls between hunting trips, vast ages ago.

300 HUNT FOR VERMONT BOY

Colebrook, Ct., Aug. 27 (AP)—A determined band of 300 men, women and children—undeterred by the failure of three days' searching—today resumed an intensive hunt of the wooded hillsides of Litchfield county for a trace of Kenneth Swanson, two-year-old Barre, Vt., boy who disappeared from the farm of his grandparents here shortly after noon Sunday.

The searchers, led by state and Winsted police, today were augmented by 75 New Haven Boy Scouts from a summer camp at Lake Wonksanknonk. They arrived at the farmhouse early today in a motor bus and immediately took to fields and woods.

While searchers are divided as to the cause of little Kenneth's disappearance—some believing he merely wandered into the woods and others that he has been kidnaped—all clung desperately to the hope that he was still alive.

FIGHT TO KEEP LINEMAN ALIVE

Firemen and policemen with oxygen tanks and pulmotors battled for more than an hour today to save the life of William Currie, 30-year-old employe of the Edison Company, who was burned by a high tension wire in Cypress st., Brookline.

While working with Lorenzo Roach of Cambridge, and George Kelley of Roxbury, Currie's hands came in contact with the wire. He was rendered unconscious, but Roach and Kelley saved him from falling.

Dr. Francis J. MacMahon was called and advised the workers to continue their efforts to revive Currie, but expressed little hope that he would live.

Currie's home is at 2994 Washington st., Roxbury.

CERRO ASSUMES POWER IN PERU

Lima, Peru, Aug. 27 (AP)—The military junta which overthrew the government of President Leguia and seized control of Peru will resign and Col. Luis M. Sanche Cerro, Southern leader, will head a new government, according to reliable advices at noon today.

Cerro seized the Pan-American Grace airplane with which Col. Lopez and others yesterday flew from Lima to Arequipa in a move to establish an amicable status with Cerro.

The southern leaders also seized the army plane, piloted by Capt. Grow, American, and two Fawcett planes for his own use.

Augusto B. Leguia, the 67-year-old ousted President of Peru, remained aboard the warship Almirante Grau in Callao harbor, awaiting possible salvation from the fate which threatens hourly to overwhelm him at the hands of his enemy. In the last 24 hours Leguia has been examined by physicians who reported him ill.

Three diplomats in Peruvian service aboard have resigned. They are Alejandro Fuente, minister to England; Cesar Canevaro, charge d'affaires at Vienna, and the minister to Belgium.

NABS ONE, BUT THIEF FLEES

While a policeman was watching a chain store in which he later captured an alleged thief, in Bridge st., Dedham today, a nearby restaurant was entered from the Charles river in the rear and robbed.

Officer John McCarthy was hiding in bushes watching a chain store which every Wednesday morning for several weeks had reported the loss of groceries and provisions.

His vigil was rewarded when he captured Mark B. Clogston of Austin st., Hyde Park, a milk wagon driver, with five pounds of bacon.

In Dedham court Clogston was placed on probation.

In the meantime it was learned the restaurant of Joseph Gagliard on Bridge st., the rear of which is on the river bank, had been entered, and robbed of food, cigars and cigarettes valued at $100.

GERMAN FLIERS, HONORED IN NEW YORK, WILL VISIT CHICAGO

RECEPTION BY WALKER IS PLANNED

Trip to Washington as Well as National Air Meet Proposed for Quartet

New York, Aug. 27—Four bronzed young men who brought their lean gray seaplane over the Atlantic to New York, will receive words of praise from Mayor James J. Walker tomorrow.

Capt. Wolfgang von Gronau and his three companions, who flew 4670 miles from Germany, will then be received at City Hall.

They expect to remain here two weeks. They said they might fly this week to Chicago to witness the National air races and visit Washington.

They probably will return to Germany by steamship, as they used all supplies of gasoline that they had stored at stopping places on their flight to New York.

During their stay here the aviators will be guests of the Fokker Company, American representatives of Dornier.

FLYING TIME: 47 HOURS

The German plane alighted in New York harbor yesterday afternoon and was credited with the first transatlantic flight ever completed with the Island of Manhattan as its terminal.

The Dornier-Wal flying boat, powered with two 500-horsepower motors, made the final leg of the flight from Halifax to New York, about 600 miles, in six hours.

Capt. Von Gronau who, with his companions, left the Isle of Sylt in the North Sea, Aug. 18, to fly here by way of Iceland, Greenland and Canada, computed the actual flying time of the trip as 47 hours.

Von Gronau, only member of the quartet who speaks English talked over the radio last night. Edward Zimmer, co-pilot; Franz Haek, mechanic and Fritz Albrecht, wireless operator, spoke briefly in German and their remarks were translated into English and broadcast again.

Capt. Gronau paid tribute to American fliers, especially mentioning Lieut. Commander Byrd of the United States Navy, who flew to Europe in 1919 and the Army round-the-world flyers, who in 1924 covered much the same route followed by the Germans.

While the other three enjoyed a late breakfast in their hotel, Von Gronau today hailed a taxi and rode downtown to the Custom House with a friend. When he arrived yesterday an immigration inspector went aboard his plane from a police boat to ask the usual questions, but the customs formalities were postponed until today.

Von Gronau also today received a telegram from the State Department, Washington, officially congratulating him and his companions on the flight.

Whether the Germans will use their ocean flight plane in trips to Chicago and Washington was dependant on condition of the craft.

Von Gronau said he would have to determine the condition of the engines and also that he would have to obtain permission for any further flights from the Deutcher Verkehrs Flieger Schule, where he is an instructor.

Frau von Gronau Has to Disconnect Telephone

Warnemuende, Germany, Aug. 27 (AP)—Because messages of congratulation on successful conclusion of her husband's flight from Germany to New York were entirely too frequent Frau Von Gronau today ordered their telephone discontinued.

Since last night when the Associated Press informed her of his landing in New York the telephone had rung constantly with friends, newspapers, acquaintances, and even public officials calling to congratulate her.

In despair today she finally called the telephone company and requested immediate discontinuance of the service.

SHOTS FIRED IN FIRST DROUTH BATTLE

Troops Guard Arkansas Camp After Farmers Protest Importing of Labor

Lonoke, Ark., Aug. 27 (AP)—A detail of Arkansas national guardsmen today patrolled the labor camp of a highway construction company near here today after irate drouth-stricken farmers threatened reprisals against employment of out-of-county and negro labor.

Tents of a camp crew were fired on Monday night by unidentified gunmen.

The detachment, under command of Capt. Morris Moore, was made up of three non-commissioned officers and 10 enlisted men and was armed with rifles, pistols and tear gas bombs.

Monday, Lonoke County farmers congregated here to seek employment on the construction of 12 miles of State highway. Constructing company field bosses announced only a limited number of jobs were available, since the work required experienced men. The farmers demanded that county labor should be used in State road projects in their county.

A guard was placed about the construction camp Monday night, and engaged in an exchange of shots with ambushed gunmen. As the shots fired into the tents were all high, officials believed they were intended to frighten Negro laborers away.

The crash, which occurred at Andover and Peters st., took the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Plummer and Edwin G. Nash, former Harvard instructor, of Cambridge, their machine leaving the road at high speed and crashing into a large tree.

Barlow declared he saw Plummer, who was in the driver's seat, take a drink before starting off again after a halt had been made in Danvers.

CHANEY DID NOT KNOW HE HAD CANCER

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor,
Universal Service

Hollywood, Aug. 27.—Lon Chaney lost his brave, determined fight against death at a time when he believed that he would soon be well again.

Only a few short hours before he closed his tired eyes, he had sat up in bed and wondered why his recovery was so slow. No one told Lon the truth, that a treacherous cancer was eating his throat and that the chances against his getting well were miserably few.

He scanned the newspapers every day and because he was so faithful a reader of all motion picture news, not one writer betrayed the confidence of the studio. All the film writers knew that the man who was so dear to the motion picture fans was fighting a losing battle, but on the chance that Lon might read about himself they all made light of his illness.

TRIUMPHED IN TALKIE

Lon never asked for publicity. He wasn't a publicity seeker, but he did love to read everything that was written concerning motion pictures. He had been badly offended and his pride hurt when a report had gone around and was even printed that he could not speak lines.

I think it will always be a source of gratification to those who knew Lon Chaney that he did show the world that he could make a successful talking picture. His voice, so long silent, was clear as a bell, his enunciation was good and he proved he was as valuable in the talkie version of "The Unholy Three" as he had been in the silent melodramas.

PLANNED NEW ROLE

He was eager to start his second talking picture, "Cheri Bebi," and often during his last and fatal illness he would discuss the story, one he had personally selected. Lon had no idea that he would never again make another picture.

The world instinctively sensed, however, that the man of a thousand faces was critically ill. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer was deluged with inquiries.

Not only did the calls come inquiring about his condition, but many people offered their blood gratefully eager to do something to save the life of their idol. A nurse, 65 years old, begged to be allowed to give her blood and to nurse him. Her only acquaintance with Mr. Chaney was on the screen, but she adored him. The president of a railroad, who met Chaney, asked to be allowed to fly to Hollywood and give his blood. Men and women in all walks of life offered their blood.

DEVOTED TO WIFE

Lon was as faithful to his movies as he was to his wife. Years ago when he was young, he had married a pretty girl in his company and through all the years he had kept her by his side. There was never a breath of scandal about the Chaneys.

They were devoted to each other during their 24 years of married life. They lived quietly, seldom appearing in public, but those who knew the Chaneys valued their friendship.

Lon Chaney will be missed. His quiet, lovable personality and his thoughtfulness to others less fortunate will be remembered. There is no one to take his place on the screen for he stood alone as the sole creator of his particular type of character, eccentric, misunderstood and in the end making the supreme sacrifice.

Chaney Rites, in Line With Wish, to Be Simple

Los Angeles, Aug. 27 (AP)—Lon Chaney will be buried as he lived—simply and without display—at Glendale, tomorrow.

The noted character actor, his career cut short by anaemia and a throat affliction, will be buried beside his father, John Chaney, who died two years ago.

Honorary pall bearers will be notables in Hollywood's film colony. They will include Tod Browning, Harry Carey, Lionel Barrymore, Ramon Navarro, William Haines, Lawrence Tibbett, Cliff Edwards and Tom Gubbins.

Chaney's death brought a flood of tributes from his fellow actors from motion picture magnates, film writers and other branches of Hollywood's world of make-believe.

Planned for months—to be remembered for years—offering savings of $10 to $46 per item—values that make merchandising experts wonder how they can be sold for as little as $19. An event that merits the confidence of thousands because, while comparative prices are quoted, we deliberately understate each value so that customers will be surprised, not disappointed, when they come in—so that anyone can see for themselves that we make conservative rather than optimistic statements and prefer not to sell rather than mislead.

Their Big Hope Is to See Beautiful Paris

IN THEY COME. To see Paris as guests of the Boston Evening American and Gloria Swanson is the big desire in the hearts of many New England girls. Here we have Miss Ruth A. White of 179 Botolph st., Boston.

MISS WINIFRED GABRIEL MORRISON of 247 West 4th st., South Boston, a stenographer, is ready for that Paris trip.

MISS MARY PENGOLD of Somerville is anxious for the honor of New England's Typical Girl. She is in the race to stay.

TYPICAL GIRL ENTRIES JUMP

One would only have to be the Typical New England Girl Editor for a day to realize that to pick the Typical New England girl was not only a job but an art.

That New England abounds in charming feminity.

That New England girls are talented, generously endowed with personality and "know a thing or two."

And from these hundreds of entries after midnight of September 15, that girl who possesses the most of typical New England womanhood with its artistocracy of cultural and dignified "it," will be called the TYPICAL NEW ENGLAND GIRL, and as such entitled to the generous award made by Miss Gloria Swanson and the Boston Evening American.

She goes to Paris, to the most cosmopolitan city in the world. But before she boards the Ile de France and is given $200 to tuck away in her brand-new purse with which to enjoy the French capital, she is sent to the Big City to enjoy the hospitality of her benefactress, witness a private showing of "What a Widow" Miss Swanson's sensational talkie which makes its debut in Boston at Loew's State Theater Sept. 15.

REGISTER NOW

And then to cross the Big Pond to the ravishing distractions of the old-world for a week and then home again aboard the Paris.

The contest, and it is NOT a beauty contest, closes September 15. There are still a few weeks left to make a try, to give some deservant girl a glorious Christmas present, as it were. She needs only to be 21 or over, or have reached the age of 21 by midnight, September 15, a permanent resident of New England and self-confidence to register herself with the Typical Girl Editor of the Boston Evening American. He and five judges will do the rest.

From today's batch of interesting mail we find the completed coupon and photograph of Winifred Gabriel Morrison of 247 Fourth st., South Boston, a stenographer, who gives her talents to the Commonwealth. A blonde, five feet, six inches with 136 pounds to carry them off, the young woman is interested in music, tennis, basketball, swimming and ice skating.

SOMERVILLE ENTRANTS

And from the "friends and admirers" of Mary Penfold of 108 Broadway, Somerville, an artist's model with titian locks and an interest in tennis, golf, horseback riding, music, art and athletics, we learn that she "is blessed with great charm and personality and is a young lady of refinement and intellect. I am sure she would be the ideal for the typical New England girl. We would like to see her capture this title and opportunity."

Ruth A. White of 179 St. Botolph st., lacking self-confidence, says she doesn't think she stands a chance, but that "there is no harm in trying."

Ruth is a blonde, five feet and four and a half inches tall and weighs 125 pounds. Domestic science absorbs her interest, she claims.

And two other hopefuls are Emily Peterson of 1276 Sea st., Quincy, a swimming enthusiast, and Olga Collegiande of 21 North st., Medway, who says she is athletic.

That's all today. More tomorrow. The Typical New England Girl contest, however, goes on until Sept. 15.

Heckscher Predicts End of Poverty in U. S. in 30 Years

"Peekskill, N. Y., Aug. 27 (INS)—"In 30 years the United States will see the end of poverty, disease and unnecessary suffering."

That was the prediction voiced by August Heckscher, noted philanthropist, speaking here at a celebration of his 82nd birthday.

He said th time public funds would provide proper housing for all, the difference between what the worker is able to pay from his earnings for rent and what the landlord should receive being paid from public funds.

3 INJURED AS CAR HITS POLE

Ipswich, Aug. 27—Three men were seriously injured and an auto was reduced to junk after it crashed into a telegraph pole on High st., opposite the Ipswich Water Works early today.

The injured were taken to the Benjamin Cable Memorial Hospital by Patrolman Gordon Ewing. Byam Horsman and Frank W. Dondero.

The injured are: William F. McGrill, 18, of School st., Manchester, owner and operator of the car; William Fallon, 19, of Maxwell st., Dorchester, and Vincent Henebury, 19, of School st., Manchester.

The trio had been to Newburyport, where they had attended a birthday party of a friend and were on their way to Manchester when the accident happened.

'Boop-a-Doop' Had Coin and He Wanted to Marry

New York, Aug. 27 (AP)—Murray Posner, bankrupt merchant, testifying before a referee, contradicted testimony by Helen Kane concerning a $50,000 payment he made to her out of the firm's funds and at the same time said he loved the girl famous for her "Boop-a-Doop" singing.

The $50,000 represented a loan to him, Posner said, and not repayment of money she had given him to invest. He said she told him if he would repay the first $50,000 she would be able to advance him $100,000 when he needed it.

They planned to marry when she could get a divorce, Posner testified, admitting that he and Mae Kane lived together in Hollywood.

TOW RUM BOAT TO PROVIDENCE

Providence, Aug. 27 (AP)—The rum-runner Mardelle, which was captured off Prudence Island yesterday after a spectacular chase, which resulted in the serious wounding of a member of her crew, was brought in tow to Providence today by a coast guard cutter with her $20,000 cargo of liquor and three handcuffed prisoners. The men were to be arraigned in federal court later today.

The Mardelle, an elaborate mahogany-colored 65-foot speedboat, disguised as a pleasure yacht, showed plainly the marks of the coast guard machine-gun fire. Her mahogany surface was marred by bullets, some of her ports were splintered and her deck had marks of fire caused by the bullets which hit her gunny sacks of liquor.

"Chips" Munson of Fall River, the wounded man, was still at the Fort Adams military hospital with a very serious lung wound.

MORSE, DOCK MAGNATE, DIES

Deep Brook, Digby County, N. S., Aug. 27 (AP)—Edward P. Morse, who rose from shipsmith to head of a $20,000,000 drydock firm, died suddenly yesterday while supervising construction of his new home here. He was 72.

He and Mrs. Morse had been here all summer building a $250,000 mansion on the shores of Digby Gut. He died before medical aid could be summoned.

Morse was chairman of the board of the United Drydocks Company, formed 18 months ago by a merger of his drydock and repair company with five other New York companies.

He was a native of Clementsport, N. S., and started his career at Yarmouth as a forge man in the repairing of sailing vessels. When 19 he moved to Boston, but later went to New York.

Surviving are his wife, two sons, Edward P. Morse, Jr., and Roy Morse, and a daughter, Mrs. Jessie Bishop.

"Sunday for Rest" Leader Drops Dead

Stony Brook, N. Y., Aug. 27 (AP)—Rev. Dr. David G. Wyle, 70 years old, who as president of the Lord's Day Alliance campaigned for many years to preserve the Sabbath as a day of rest, dropped dead at his summer home here yesterday. He had just returned from the General Bible Conference.

Mother of N. H. Air Hero to See Son's Grave

New York, Aug. 27 (AP)—Ten years ago this summer the parents of Lieut. Sydney Beaudett, American aviator who was shot down behind the German lines just 13 days before the close of the world war, were preparing at their home in Concord, N. H., to make a pilgrimage to his grave in France.

Today his mother, Mrs. Jennie Haywood Beaudett, a widow now, sailed for France, with other New Hampshire Gold Star Mothers who are making the trip as guests of the government.

"From the day, away after the armistice, when we learned that he was dead his father and I planned to go to his grave," she said today.

"It wasn't until the summer of 1928 that we were permitted to do so. We were almost ready to leave—had our passports and all—when his father was taken ill and died."

Sydney Beaudett's father will never hear a description of that cemetery in far-away France, but to Lieut. Patterson of Havre, Mont., Mrs. Beaudett will write of what she has seen and felt. Lieut. Patterson was the observer in the airplane which Beaudett was piloting when they were shot down. Patterson was wounded and taken prisoner.

Two hundred and forty Gold Star Mothers were to leave on the S. S. America today, and 18 of them, the largest single unit, came from New Hampshire. Many also were from Maine, Connecticut and other New England states.

Among the New Hampshire women was Mrs. A. Chartier of Manchester, whose two sons, Louis and David, were killed just a month apart in France, and Mrs. Elizabeth Veno of Concord, whose son, a Marine, was killed.

Letters mailed to half a dozen women demanded various sums, mostly $4000. He told the women to drop the money over a certain fence, and was arrested picking up a decoy package.

Ten members of the crew of the Nova V were under arrest.

Washington, Aug. 27 (AP)—C. Bascom Slemp, former secretary to President Coolidge, has been appointed by President Hoover to be director general of American participation in the French Colonial exposition at Paris next year. Congress has appropriated $250,000 for this nation's part.

Black's Body Still on List of Missing

New York, Aug. 27 (AP)—A body found by the United States Coast Guard off Long Branch, N. J., was identified today as that of Perry Martin, 25, of Washington, dissipating reports that it might be that of Van Lear Black, Baltimore publisher, who fell from his yacht into the sea a week ago.

Zita's Message Was First to Albrecht

MUELLER'S COOKED SPAGHETTI EN CASSEROLE WITH LEFT-OVER MEAT

1 Can MUELLER'S COOKED SPAGHETTI; 1½ Cup left-over meat; 2 Tbsp. melted butter; ½ Tsp. salt; ¼ Tsp. pepper; ½ Cup buttered bread crumbs.

Remove cooked spaghetti from can. Combine left-over meat, cut into small cubes, with melted butter, salt, and pepper. Place layer of cooked spaghetti in well-greased casserole, then layer of left-over meat mixture. Alternate layers with cooked spaghetti on top. Cover with buttered bread crumbs and bake in moderate oven for 20 minutes.

Another simple way is to remove the cooked spaghetti from the can, place it in a baking dish, spread a few slices of bacon on top, and put in the oven to heat.

FINDS GAIN IN EMPLOYMENT

Washington, Aug. 27 (AP)—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said in a statement today there had been no increase in unemployment in August, and that this fact probably "foreshadows the fall increase in industrial activity."

"While the decrease in unemployment was only three-tenths of 1 per cent, and therefore not enough to be apparent from our published figures," Green said, "we feel that even this small improvement is encouraging, because it indicates that a turn for the better probably took place as early as the first part of the month."

Green added that this improvement "should not make us overlook the very serious unemployment in these dull summer months."

Foiled in Attempt to Kill Former Beer King

Chicago, Aug. 27 (AP)—Today's Herald and Examiner said Terry Druggan, erstwhile beer baron ally of Frankie Lane, was barricaded with bodyguards in a loop hotel after an attempt had been made to kill him Sunday.

The newspaper said it had learned a gunman was thwarted in the attempt by a hotel house detective who appeared just as the man had drawn a gun outside the Druggan suite. The man escaped, the paper said, and police were not notified.

LETTERS FROM BOSTON AMERICAN READERS

Letters from readers on current subjects are welcomed. Letters should not exceed 250 words in length, should be written on one side of the paper, and must bear writer's name. Names will be omitted in publication, if requested. Address Editor, Boston American, 5 Winthrop sq.

Editor Boston American:

As a voter in the City of Boston I would like to ask those in charge of city elections to instruct their registration officers to talk a shade higher than a whisper.

Being one of those who came out of the war partly deaf I got kind of embarrassed in facing one of them while registering and I believe it is my last time unless I know the officer speaks loud enough to be heard.

This may be cause enough for many of the voters to stay away on election day.

Women Today Better Off Than Those of Puritan Days

Editor Boston American:

How much better off every way are the women of today over the women of Colonial times, 1630?

Some speakers never tire of trying to find the Colonial woman as ideal. She may have been in disposition, but her life was anything but ideal, considering what she had to put up with.

Women then were chiefly occupied with spinning, milking, baking, egg gathering and feeding the hens when they could get them.

Their chief excitement consisted of a traveler arriving, for a night's lodging whom they would pump till early morn about the news of the outside world. They had no daily paper, no gas stove to get breakfast ready in a hurry, no electric light to touch, but the miserable light of a candle that sputtered was all over, no fashion styles to look at, no books, no cigarettes, no bridge parties, no movies, no radios, no washing machines, nothing but salt pork to drive their teeth into. They even shuddered when they saw the pig wandering around the back yard, for they knew that sooner or later he would be peaceably inside of them.

Ideal! Piffle, Piffle! Thank your stars that you are modern woman. MALCOLM M. BUSH.

Letter on Hoopskirts Brought Back Memories

Editor Boston American:

I was reading Henry T. Golding's piece regarding the hoop skirt of long ago. It brought to my mind an experience I had when a very young girl in my home in Maine many years ago. My mother bought my sister and myself small hoopskirts to wear with our new dresses that were being made at a fashionable dressmakers. When the day arrived to dress up to go to church "all dolled up to show the people" with our new finery, I hunted high and low for my hoopskirt. It could not be found. So I set up a most heart rending crying spell. My brother, happening to come in at the psychological moment, asked what was the matter. I said some one took my hoopskirt that was bought me. He said was it made of wire. I said yes. He said I made 40 snares out of it and put them in Farrington's woods to snare rabbits. You can imagine what I said to him. I never forgot my disappointment. But my father was glad of it as he said he hated the darned things any way. VERITUS.

Finds Boston Center of Educational World

Editor Boston American:

After talking with E. Subbukrishnaiya, of So. India, who is in Boston studying, I quizzed him about his coming to Boston for an advanced education.

His reply I think should be better known than to rest in a conversation. He said:

"Boston is well known in So. India. We feel that what is taught and experienced in this city along educational lines, is far ahead of any other city in the United States.

"New York City is too commercialized. Philadelphia according to my people cannot boast of the advantages in education as Boston can. Boston is recognized in my country as the seat of learning for the United States.

"If any one in my country wants to get advanced education Boston is recommended."

This interested me and I am venturing to bring it before your readers. He may be found at 5So. 16 Beacon st.

Favors Plan for Civilians in Police Department

Editor Boston American:

A few weeks ago in a morning newspaper appeared an article relative to Police Commissioner Hultman making a survey as to the advisability of using civilian clerks and patrol wagon drivers, in place of regular patrolmen in these positions.

Your paper being ever ready to take up a good cause, I think it would be a great idea if you would call to the commissioner's attention some of the facts of this matter.

First, the men who take the examination for police officer do not expect after appointment to be used as chauffeurs, neither do they expect to be washing and greasing cars. In other words they expect to be made patrolmen, to do regular police work, gain their experience in police duties and in time, expect to be given the opportunity of promotion.

A patrolman that has the misfortune to be made a wagon driver in the police dept. has little or no chance to gain police experience or promotion.

A wagon driver can in no way be included in police work except that under present rule he is sworn in as a police officer. If the same method now in use in the police dept. was followed at the hospitals it would mean that doctors would have to drive the ambulance instead of ambulance drivers. But as it is now the ambulance driver is doing the same duties for the hospital as the patrol driver is doing for the police dept.

Second, the case of a patrolman being made a clerk is a little different in as much as the clerks are kept in touch with police duties and can gain some knowledge of police business, this giving them a chance for promotion. But usually the favored one of the captain in charge of the station is made clerk which is not fair to the other officers and a patrolman on the streets is in much better use than one doing clerk's work. The position of clerk could be filled by those civilians taking the examination for clerks of which there are a great many now on the Civil Service list.

Third, the filling of these positions by civilian help would save a great deal of money for the city as neither of these positions would call for a patrolman's salary.

Hoping that these facts may be brought to the attention of the police commissioner and the public and that some favorable action will result, I remain

FRANK T. HOLHMAN.

Wants Light Not Heat From Candidates

Editor Boston American:

Candidates for governorship this fall on the Democratic ticket supplied us with plenty of heat but no light at "Ye Old Town Meeting" held recently at Hull. The voters are now using their heads more and inquiring—What is Democracy? As far as I know there are no "local politicians" preaching it. "Local self-government" is the answer, or placing the responsibility of government squarely on the shoulders of the people, where it belongs (through free unicipal government).

Found Surprise in Name on Railway Car

Editor Boston American:

A pleasant surprise met me at the yards of the Boston & Albany railroad, Exeter st., when I saw a Pullman parlor car resting there with the name, Florence Nightingale, the philanthropic nurse, marked upon it.

The coincidence about it was the day that I saw the car was her birthday. Can you beat it?

Praises Woman Who Seeks Election

Editor Boston American:

The growing desire of women to enter the political arena is becoming more apparent as fall elections dawn.

Mrs. Leslie B. Cutler of Needham wants to be representative for her district—Needham, Dedham and Wellesley.

Wellesley women have the political bee in their bonnet. No women in any part of this state are so well versed in civic and national affairs as the female intelligencia of this beautiful town.

They have flowed many a man on this ground and engagements are still open. Mrs. Cutler is likely to have women buzzing at her ears, proclaiming her special gifts for a representative position in the commonwealth. She has just returned from attending the world health conference at Dresden, Germany, where she had marked influence. She has served on the board of selectmen as well as chairman of the board of health in Needham.

No Lights Can Replace Officers There

Editor Boston American:

The praise which your letter column gave to the traffic officers at the South Station is well deserved. Many of us commuters at this point have admired the way they have handled crowds crossing Atlantic ave., morning and evening.

Here is clear evidence that traffic lights would not meet the traffic problem there. Some people get mixed up in crossing at this point. Women become over nervous and run into danger. They need human protection. They get it from these officers. I saw an instance of this only a short time ago, when an elderly woman became dazed and needed more than a traffic light to save her from being injured. These officers are doing good work and deserve commendation. Everyone who uses that crossing probably feels this way about it.

Tells Back Bay Women to Carry Revolvers

Editor Boston American:

The account of an attack by a holdup man in the Back Bay upon Miss Lillian Butler of 62 Louis Prang st., who, losing more than $30 and having her coat torn, calls for some comment.

No woman should go alone in the Back Bay at night without having protection. I should recommend carrying a .22 calibre revolver.

I was accosted by a man there quite late at night and evaded him by frightening him with my repeater.

This happened some time ago. There is no use of trying to get away from these miserable curs. Just give them what they deserve They think women are easy victims. Let them know otherwise. N. M. L.

Arch Preserver Shoes are unlike any other shoes—because they contain every feature necessary to provide comfort and health to every part of the foot.

For instance, the metatarsal support, provides relief for the strain across the ball of the foot—prevents the toes from jamming—prevents painful callouses.

The rigid, steel arch-bridge gives support at the three natural support points. There is no sagging. There is no straining at this set of muscles or that.

Even the system of fitting in my two stores is unique. By the "heel-to-ball" system of measurement, every part of the shoe fits every part of the foot.

And no shoe excels the Arch Preserver Shoe in smart style.

British-American Track Meet at Chicago Tonight

Chicago, Aug. 27—British and American athletic aces compete here in an international track meet tonight at Soldier Field.

The British arrived from Hamilton, Ontario, where the personnel of their 55-man team was picked in an elimination meet. The Americans, 66 of them, were selected in a similar manner in the A. A. U. games at Pittsburgh, Pa.

The Britishers are from the far-flung possessions of the empire as well as from Canada and England. Several hail from Australia and New Zealand.

The Pacific coast supplies most of the athletes for the American contingent, although it has the two spectacular dash men, Eddie Tolan, the Michigan Negro, and George Simpson, from Ohio.

A large number of the entrants wear the colors of the Los Angeles A. C., the Olympic Club of San Francisco and the Washington A. C. of Seattle. Paul Jessup, the new champion discus thrower, hails from the University of Washington.

The British team is captained by Lord David Burghley, who shines in the hurdles.

Because of their superiority in the field events, the Americans ranked as favorites to capture the meet. They expected to win all six field events, lose an equal number of running races and come back to capture the deciding 400-yard relay and 400-yard shuttle hurdle relay.

Fourteen events will be run in all, with an exhibition 100-yard dash tossed in to thrill the crowd, which is expected to be one of the largest ever to attend a track meet in the United States.

The loss of Percy Williams, 1928 Olympic champion in the 100 and 200-meter events, blighted British hopes. The Vancouver star pulled a tendon in the finals of the 100-yard dash of the Empire games at Hamilton and was out of the field.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
"Golf's Greatest Teach

One sure test of whether you are looking up too soon, which, if you are, proves that you are moving your head, is to note whether you see the ball in all its flight from the time it leaves the clubhead. If you do you are looking up and you cannot follow after the ball this way with your eyes without at the same time moving your head. If your head is kept still and your attention is on the ball, the ball will be dispatched, bullet-like, and will be well on its way before you seek it in the air and locate its flight. Seeing the ball all the way indicates that, in following it with your eyes, you unconsciously turn your head in its direction just as your clubhead goes through, and this turning releases your pressure and smoothness of swing, which in turn robs the ball of distance. Hold your head in its place and swing through—past your head. This is considerably different from having your head go with the swing.

Derby Sweepstakes May Be Continued

St. John's, N. F., Aug. 27 (AP)—The Army and Navy Veterans derby sweepstakes, banned from Quebec by recent action of the government, may be continued under the auspices of the Newfoundland War Veterans' Association.

A proposal to transfer the drawings here was approved at a meeting last night. The lottery will be subject to the approval of the Newfoundland government.

In this year's drawings on the Epsom Downs classic, Edward P. Dougherty, 19-year-old Brooklyn (N. Y.) broker's clerk, won the first prize of $145,000.

Quebec officials have forbidden lotteries because many bogus drawings sprang up after the publicity given to the Dougherty winning.

Peter Patch Sets New Track Record

Ellsworth, Me., Aug. 27—Peter Patch, the Power Patch gelding owned by T. J. Kelley of Bangor, clipped the track record made by himself last year, setting the new mark at 2:11¾, in the first day's races at the Hancock County Fair, romping around his field which included Lu Trask, 2:03¾, which failed to reach him on the brushes.

Henry Clukey of Rockland took the other class with Jingle Bell, a newcomer on Maine tracks this year.

GURNETT NINE WINS TITLE

Gurnett & Company won the championship of the Bankers and Brokers League by blanking Atlantic National Bank, 4 to 0, to win their second straight game of the series at Fenway Park.

The game was highly interesting throughout with many sensational fielding plays to liven up the proceedings. Andy Carroll blanked the second half winners to register his second straight shutout game in the league. He fanned seven batsmen while he did not pass a runner.

Gurnett scored in the first inning on passes to George Kelley and Eddie Martin and Joe Ogle's lamruping single to left. The scoring was completed in the third when Sullivan singled, took second on a wild pitch, third on Harry Gold's sacrifice and scored on Kelley's single. Kelley was caught off base, but passes to Martin and Ogle and singles by Tommy Noon and Billy McKenna chased two more runs over.

San Francisco, Aug. 27—Frankie Campbell, well known California heavyweight boxer, who was knocked out in the fifth round of a bout here with Max Baer, is dead.

PRITCHARD IN SWIM LEAD

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 27 (AP)—With about one-third of the 15-mile course completed in the Canadian national exhibition marathon swim today, Frank Pritchard of Buffalo, N. Y., was out in front of a large field by 250 yards. His nearest competitor was the youthful Leader Spondor of Port Colborne, Ont., who was traveling at a remarkably fast clip in an effort to cut down the Buffalo man's lead.

Spondor was cutting loose with a sharp overhead crawl stroke at a rate of 64 to the minute as he flashed by the press stand on his third lap. Pritchard, up in front, was ploughing steadily ahead with a 52 stroke.

Sam Shields, of Coral Gables, Fla., trailed Spondor by 23 yards and 50 yards behind him came Young, one of Toronto's hopes and conqueror of Catalina channel.

Leon K. Emerson, Wollaston, vs. W. H. Donnelly, Jr., Woodland.

By BILL GRIMES

With one exception the quarter finals of the second William Randolph Hearst junior golf championship, played this morning at the Wollaston Golf Club, were closely contested, two of them going to the home green before reaching the final decision.

John Quinn and John Barbour battled through 18 holes as did Johnny Brown and Bob Hunter. The Emerson-Moore match ended 17 holes, but Bill Donnelly closed his engagement with Gene Dolan on the 13th green.

Johnny Quinn, the Chestnut Hill boy, who was runner-up in the Eddy championship last week, shot a 75 to beat Johnny Barbour, one up. Johnny Brown had a 78 against Bob Hunter, while Donnelly was only one over fours for the 13 holes he played.

Brown Comes From Behind to Beat Hunter

Johnny Brown came from behind to eliminate Bob Hunter, the Albemarle boy piling up a four-hole lead over the Maine Stater during the first five holes. In fact Brown was four down going to the 10th, but he squared the match at the 16th, and finally won two up.

Hunter got off to a fine start and was one under par due to a birdie at the long seventh, going to the sixth hole, where Brown chipped in to be down in one putt for a birdie four and a win.

Hunter came back with a birdie at the 7th, but three putts cost him the eighth hole, which Brown won with a nice four. Brown missed the green from the ninth tee and lost the hole to a three. Hunter needed three to get down from the edge of the 10th green and lost the hole to a regulation four.

Both were short with their seconds going to the eleventh, and as neither was able to get down with one putt they halved the hole with fives. A missed tee shot started Hunter off on the wrong foot going to the 12th, for he needed three to get home and lost the hole to Brown's four.

They both messed up the short 13th, winding up with a half in five, and they were one over par [illegible] eagle three at the 14th, but his birdie was good for a win and then he squared the match at the 16th, when Hunter missed a short putt. Having won two in a row, Brown continued his good work with a [illegible] birdie at the 17th, where he won down a 15-foot putt, Hunter made a fine try to get back even at the home hole, when he made a bid for his three, but he ran by and then missed coming back to lose the hole.

Brown's card:

Out ..... 4 5 4 5 5 5 5 4 4—40
In ..... 4 5 4 5 5 5 6 3 4 4—39—79

Hunter's card:

In ..... 5 5 4 5 5 5 6 4 6 3—46—85

Quinn and Barbour had a dingdong match which was won by the former when he came back in 38, playing the last seven holes in three under par. Barbour was one up at the turn and two up going to the 12th. After Quinn had squared the match by winning the 12th and 13th Barbour went into the lead again with a birdie four at the 15th, but Quinn finished with two birdies to win a one-up decision.

Quinn and Barbour Wage Nip-and-Tuck Match

After they had halved the first hole Quinn took the next two, but three putts cost him the fourth hole. Then Barbour squared the match at the sixth, where he was home with his second and down with two putts for a birdie four.

Quinn was strong with his second going to the third, the ball running over the green and he lost the hole to a par five, to be one down, but he came back and dropped a 12-foot putt for a birdie three to square the match on the eighth only to lose the ninth when his putt for a three hung on the lip of the cup.

A great recovery shot after a badly hooked drive brought Barbour through to win at the 10th. He put his second shoot of the green, chipped on and was down with one putt while Quinn needed three to get in from the edge of the green.

Three putts cost Barbour a win at the 11th and then he was short with his second going to the 12th and lost the hole to a four. Quinn squared the match at the 13th by

Bell and Mangin Advance to Semi-Final Round

TILDEN AND HUNTER ARE VICTORIOUS

By JOHN GILLOOLY

Berkeley Bell and Gregory Mangin of Texas and New Jersey were the first team to enter the semi-finals of the 49th annual national doubles championships at the Longwood Cricket Club today.

Bell and Mangin defeated the national clay court champions, Fritz Mercur and J. Gilbert Hall, by scores of 4—6, 6—2, 6—3, 6—2 in a hard-fought four-set battle that was filled with thrills from start to finish.

Bell and Mangin, though both small, had more pep than any other team in the tourney has shown to date. The bounded and bobbed all over the court to the delight of some 1500 fans, who preferred to watch the antics of the pair rather than look on while Tilden and Hunter faced Ollis and Terry on another court at the same time.

Bell showed a pair of trick legs that seemed to collapse every so often, played many of his shots from sitting position and while sliding into the net.

His pure white toggery was striped with grass stains at the finish of the match and the gallery wildly applauded the youthful Texan after his exhibition of tennis and acrobatics.

Mercur and Hall played good tennis throughout but the Bell-Mangin combination carried too many guns for them.

Tilden and Hunter Beat English Combination

With his face distorted by pain and limping badly from a hip injury, Bill Tilden carried himself and his partner, Frank Hunter into the semi-finals by defeating John Olliff and Fred Perry, only remaining English team in the tourney, 6—2, 7—5, 6—4 in a match that carried plenty of color, despite the fact that the Englishmen didn't carry the match into extra sets.

Tilden was the old master again, today. He carried Hunter through to the heights with him. Bill Tilden team was plenty good and put up a brilliant battle bfeore submitting to defeat.

Olliff, especially, was superb, while his partner shared the glory in spots but frequently netted to handicap the mate.

Tilden and Hunter came back from 4—2 to win the second set at 7—5. The veterans were trailing 4—0 in the final set but put on a great comeback to win six games in a row and the set, 6—4.

Nuthall-Marlowe Team Extended to Win

Miss Betty Nuthall of England and Miss Helen Marlowe of New York were pushed to the limit to stay in the women's invitation doubles.

Betty and Helen defeated Miss Virginia Rice and Miss Penelope Anderson after a gruelling three-set match 2—6, 6—2, 6—1. The Rice-Anderson team swept the first set in quick fashion when Miss Nuthall and Miss Marlowe barely getting under way at any stage of the set.

The games were 3—2 in the second set when the internationals combine broke through the Rice-Marlowe and then ran our two more games to win.

Virginia and Penelope weren't beaten yet though and continued to play stellar tennis throughout the third set. The score was 4—1 but four of the games went to deuce. Miss Nuthall bore the brunt of the second set to overtime, but the Morrill-Cress team was ever the better.

Miss Marjorie Gladman and Miss Josephine Cruickshank had the softest time in the quarter finals, eliminating Mrs. Charles Babcock and Miss Margaret Blake. The Californian combination won in short time by scores of 6—0, 6—0.

GALLAGHER DEFEATS LAMAR

Lamar's Defeat Lowers Conway's Average

Marty Gallagher upset the dope when he won from Henry Lamar in a 10-round bout at Braves Field.

Jack Conway picked Lamar to win, but Gallagher tossed the selection for a loss.

Conway's 1930 record follows:

W	L	P.C.
48	7	.872

By RINGSIDE

Marty Gallagher won the decision over Henry Lamar after ten rounds of slow boxing at a Boston Garden show at Braves Field. Gallagher's margin of victory was a small one.

Marty's aggressiveness and body punching turned the tide of battle in his favor.

There was a great deal of holding all through the contest. This called forth considerable booing from the spectators.

It was the third meeting between the big fellows. In the previous two matches, which were staged at Baltimore, Lamar won.

The show was attended by 4,000 fans.

Gallagher weighed 205 pounds, while Lamar scaled 186½ pounds.

Gallagher had the margin in the first five rounds. He landed the cleaner blows at long range and also excelled at infighting.

Lamar's best punch was a left hook. He drove this blow to the head and body with good effect.

There was considerable holding. Lamar being the chief offender. Referee Sheehan warned Lamar against holding with one hand and hitting with the other.

The action picked up in the sixth frame. Gallagher landed the best punch of the session, a smashing left hook to the mouth. Lamar did some effective work with his left to the face just before the gong sounded.

Holding by Both Boxers Slows Up Battle

Gallagher was the aggressor in the seventh round. Lamar met Marty's rushes with left hooks to the head. Lamar also counted with some solid right hand uppercuts to the body. This was Lamar's best round up to this point in the tussle.

There were a few torrid mixups in the eighth round, but holding slowed the bout down in spots. Both boxers were offenders in this respect.

Lamar called his left hook to the head into play in the ninth round, while Gallagher made his drive with left and right punches to the body.

Gallagher continued his body attack in the tenth round and had the best of the milling.

Larsen Wins Over Bailey in 6 Rounds

Ring Larsen of Quincy, former welterweight and middleweight champion, won from Roy Bailey of Somerville in six rounds. Larsen suffered a knockdown in the third round, but had Bailey on the floor in the fifth session.

Ug Gallant of Medford outscored Pat O'Flaherty of South Boston in eight frames.

Jerry Mitchell of Somerville won the duke over Steve Gorman of South Boston in eight heats. Mitchell was beaten by Gorman when they met in the diamond belt tournament which made his victory at the Wigwam a sweet one.

Andy Mitchell of California was awarded the decision over Jack Dudley of Worcester at the end of the third round. Dudley had a bad wound over his left eye which was caused by a left hook and Dr. John Connors on examining it told Referee Sheehan it would be unwise to proceed with the match.

MR. BOSTON
by JACK CONWAY

Matchmaker Eddie Mack of the Argonne A. A. leaned over the press row at Braves Field to hello Mr. Boston.

Phil Schlossberg," said Mack, "has asked me to tell you he would like you to take a peek at Ernie Schaaf in training at Wrentham. Schaaf has his own training camp. It is far away from the roar of the city. The only other boxers at the place are his sparring partners.

"I dropped up to Wrentham the other day and was much impressed by the way Schaaf breezed through his workout.

"I saw Babe Hunt knock out Paul Pantaleo and defeat Jimmy Braddock, and had an idea he also might upset Schaaf. After seeing Ernie in action, I have not any decided opinion as to how the battle will terminate. All I ask is that the boys furnish the kind of action they have produced in recent skirmishes.

"Schaaf has beaten Tommy Loughran twice this Summer. The first tussle was close and many of those persons at the ringside thought Loughran had the edge. Schaaf then stepped right back into Philadelphia with Loughran and won by a wide margin. He had Loughran on the verge of a knockout a couple of times.

"I don't care whether Schaaf or Hunt wins as long as it is a good fight. It is better for a boxer to lose in a stirring encagement than it is for him to grab the duke in an uninteresting contest.

"Schaaf and Hunt are both young. I read your story about the young golfers at Wollaston in which you said youth was unconquerable. I believe this also goes for Schaaf and Hunt. They are both fired by ambition and want to get to the front."

Wollaston Tourney Holds Interest of Public

"I sat in on the sport desk for a few hours late yesterday afternoon," chirped Mr. Boston, "and got an idea of how New England is all interested up over the Hearst junior golf championship at Wollaston. There were more than a hundred telephone calls from persons who wished to know how different golfers fared in the match play.

"The remarkably low scores turned in by some of the youngsters have attracted the attention of all golfers. Most amateur golfers are happy if they can break 90 after years of experience. The boys at Wollaston are not satisfied unless they are under 70's.

"As I have said, there will be a golf champion on every corner ten years from now.

"The number of people calling up the telephone to learn the golf scores reminded me of the way folks used to call up years ago to see how the ball games ended. Nowadays the only people who call up to get a baseball score are those who have certain clubs in pools.

Ruth Holds Interest Of Baseball Fans

"Baseball fans are more interested in Babe Ruth than in the result of ball games.

"Thousands of people call this sporting department during each baseball season to keep in touch with Babe's latest home run feats. They are more interested in finding out if the Babe clicked a home run than they are in the result of the ball game.

"Did Ruth get a home run today?' is a common question.

"Seldom any query as to who won the ball game. Just interest in the Babe.

Lumiansky Has Brown In Paris Bout

"Dave Lumiansky of New Bedford tells me he has booked a mixup for France. Dave has Al Brown defending his title as world's bantamweight champion against Lumiansky at Paris on October 4. Brown has been guaranteed $15,000."

Emerson and Donnelly in Semi-Final Match chipping in from off the green for a birdie two.

After they had halved the 16th, Barbour hit two fine shots and was just short of the 18th green with his second, from where he chipped on and was down with one putt for a birdie four to be one up again.

As they halved the 16th with threes, Barbour was carrying a one-hole advantage going to the 17th, but Quinn ran down a 20-foot putt for a birdie four and squared the match.

At the 18th Quinn was hole high with his drive with Barbour just off over the road. They chipped on, Quinn leaving himself a five-footer while Barbour's ball ran 15 feet past the cup. Barbour made a great bid for his three, his ball stopping on the lip of the cup and then Quinn stepped up and dropped his putt for a birdie three and a win.

Emerson and Moore battled along on even terms to the turn, both being out in 40 and each winning three holes. They were still "all flat" through the 11th but a missed five shot by Moore opened the gate for Emerson to win the 12th and the Wollaston boy went to two up when Moore was short with his second going to the 14th and failed to get down with one putt.

Emerson Wins Out at 17th Hole

Moore came back with a birdie four at the long 13th but he lost the 16th when he was trapped from the tee and the fourth when he was unable to get down under a five at the 17th.

Bill Donnelly, former junior champion of the state, "toured" Gene Dolan in their match. Donnelly reached the turn in 37, which included a 5 on the second hole and birdies at the fifth and sixth. Donnelly started his drive for victory at the third hole after they had halved the first and second, and he won four in a row.

Donnelly Reaches Turn Five Up

After they halved the seventh with par figures, Donnelly got down with one putt for a four at the eighth and he was five up at the turn. Dolan won his only hole at the tenth where Donnelly was in trouble with his tee shot. Donnelly came through with wins at the 11th and 12th and the match was all over when they halved the short 13th with threes.

A's Open Final Series Here With Red Sox Tomorrow

THREE GAMES CARDED AT FENWAY

By JOE CASHMAN

After an absence of three days, big league baseball will return to the Hub tomorrow, when Connie Mack and his world's champion Athletics from Philadelphia make their final invasion of the Fens for three games with our Red Sox, just back from a one-night stand in St. John, N. B.

As welcome to the champs as were all past series with the Sox this season, this coming engagement is the most welcome of all to the Mackmen.

Joe Cashman

For they are all tired out both physically and mentally after their hectic battles with the Senators during the last three days, and are badly in need of the opportunity to relax a bit which they are certain the local series will afford them.

The A's came mighty close to running into a peck of trouble against the Solons. They dropped the first two games to their second-place rivals and had to stage a four-run rally in the eighth to win the final contest by a margin of one run.

Had they lost all three games their lead today would be only 5½ instead of 7½ games, their morale would be greatly weakened and their chances of eventually winning out would be not much better than even.

Connie Mack warned his charges when they were 10 games out front about a fortnight ago, that they still had to hustle to win the flag.

A's Expect Easy Time Against Red Sox

The boys didn't believe their veteran pilot at the time, but they do now, after their narrow escape against the Senators, and they intend to bear down all the way from here in and win by a comfortable margin.

Having captured 12 out of 15 games from the Sox, to date, the champions naturally expect to find the going easy during their stay in the Hub and, being tired, aren't likely to work any harder than is absolutely necessary to win.

Should the natives prove stronger than expected, however, the visitors can be counted upon to give their all to win for they are determined to drop no more games for want of trying.

Al Simmons and Mickey Cochrane, the mainstays of the A's, are going great guns these days and should give their legion of local admirers plenty of thrills before leaving town.

All Simmons did to save his mates in the final battle with the Senators was to make four hits, including a triple and a home run, and knock in three runs, while Cochrane came through with a home run with one on and two singles.

These two young men just about represent the greatness of the Mackmen. With them, the champs are one of the strongest clubs of all time; without them, the rest of the boys would have their troubles staying in the first division.

Ladies' Day Tomorrow at Fenway Park

The Sox, despite the long trip to St. John, where they won over the locals 7 to 8, were full of pep when they arrived in town today and threatened to give the A's plenty of opposition.

Whether or no they have any luck in whipping the invadera, they ought to furnish a real fight in every game, as they promise, as none of the regular hurlers have worked since Sunday and Gaston, MacFayden, Durham, Russell and Lisenbee, when well-rested, can give any club plenty of trouble providing they receive any assistance at all from their supporting cast.

The A's will play at the Fens tomorrow and Saturday and at Braves Field on Sunday. Friday, the regular Ladies' Day, being an open date, the feminine fans will be admitted free to tomorrow's game.

Notes of the Sandlots

Hyde Park fans will have the last glimpse of their entry in the Hub Twilight League this p. m. when Walter Nelson's team entertains the South Boston club at Smith playground, Hyde Park.

Both Southie and Hyde Park are strong aggregations but were nosed out of the championship class. Hyde Park dropped its chance to be in the first division by a forfeited game, while South Boston just hasn't been getting the breaks, although it has some fine players in Kerrigan, O'Neil, Weiners, Lucas, Sullivan and Quilty.

Iron Man Corrigan is likely to pitch for Hyde Park tonight. Tomorrow Hyde Park has a chance to put a crimp in Allston's hop when they play that outfit at North Brighton. Another Hub Twi game tomorrow night finds Somerville playing Jamaica Plain at Carolina ave.

Somerville is over-anxious to get into the league leadership by whipping Jamaica. The second-half ends next Sunday and Somerville must win all remaining games to nose into the little world's series.

Joe Harraghy of Orleans, former captain at Providence College, has been hitting for close to .400 and playing a great all-round game for Patsy Donovan's Orleans entry in the Cape Cod League.

Johnny Murphy and George Colbert divided honors in Dollar Day held at Harwich recently. Murphy won the throwing and base-running contests while Colbert won the batting for hitting with a fungo bat and slapping the ball through a barrel, placed at second base, from home plate. Watermelons were the prizes offered for these feats.

Employes of Andrew J. Lloyd s

will gather at the Boston Common tonight when the factory and store baseball teams in that company meet for the President's Cup on the diamond. The game will start at 5:30.

The Hoyt Pals are looking for a Labor Day game away from home due to a cancellation. This club would like to book a holiday game with any strong club in New England. Get in touch with Melvin Blevins, 820 Mass. ave., or call university 3860 between 8:30 and 10:00 p. m.

Fittons to Start Practice Next Week

Many new faces will be seen in the lineup of the Fitton A. C. football team of East Boston when it opens its season at Fort Banks, Winthrop, Sunday, Sept. 21.

Opening practice will be held next Tuesday night, when a large list of candidates will report to Coach Ford for the initial workout. All indications point to the strongest team in the history of the East Boston eleven.

Fort Banks playground will be the scene of all the Fittons' home games. The Fitton management is desirous of completing the schedule for the season and would like to hear from their old rivals for games at home.

International Amateur Bouts At Dilboy Field

Boxers from Nova Scotia will compete with representatives from New York and Massachusetts, in the Dilboy Post international tournament being held tonight, at Dilboy Field, Somerville.

Dilboy Post has selected the following amateurs to represent the State: Frank Mulholland, 118 pounds, Taunton; Pat McStay, Newtown; Conor Mederios, Taunton; Al Vittali, North End, 126 pounds. In the 135-pound class, George Lawless, Waverley; Francis Carter, Worcester, New England champion; Harry Alexanian, Marlboro. In the welterweight division Mickey Bishop, Saugus; Al Zappala, Lawrence; Al Marcin, Boston. Heavyweights, Henry Surrett, Leominster; Al Dean, Medford, New England champion, and Ted Johnson, Quincy.

The Nova Scotia and New York boxers are the best of their class in their sections. Kasher Chalter, representing Nova Scotia in the 118 pounds class is a clever two-handed puncher. Among his victories is one over Bonar of North Sydney, 1929 Maritime Province champion.

The New York aggregation is anxious to win this tourney. They are reputed to be the best team ever sent over here from the big city. Their team is composed of Frank Oddo, 126 pounds; Jack Lewis, 135 pounds; Bob Vinch, welterweight, and Hy Zeman, heavyweight.

The first bout will start at 7:45 in front of the grandstand.

Dorchester Half a Game From Lead

Dorchester beat Malden, 5 to 2 at the Pearl st. grounds and is now on a half game from the Revere baseball team. Dave Balkom of the mound for Malden gave the passes in the 11 Dorchester hits. Poor support was the undoing. Lobis, Comeau, Devereaux and Balkom each got a hit.

The game was a real one all the way through and for a time the result was in doubt. Dorchester scored one run in the second inning and added another in the fifth. Malden scored its only run in the seventh when Johnny Malatesta, batting for Devereaux, was safe on an infield out. Hal Janvrin fanned to end the inning.

WILSON'S 44TH SETS RECORD

CHICAGO, Aug. 27—Hack Wilson, Cuba center fielder, smashed the home run record of the National League by hitting his 44th circuit blow in Chicago's 7 to 3 victory over the Pittsburg Pirates.

The homer, made off Larry French in the seventh inning, exceeded the record of 43 set by Klein of Philadelphia in the first game of the 1929 season. It also put Wilson in a tie with Babe Ruth in the 1920 home run race.

The victory put the Cubs 3 games ahead of the New York Giants, who were idle.

PORT OF BOSTON IN REVIEW

Through the efforts of a Boston & Maine railroad official the harbor area has gained new business from New York.

A ship from Hull, England, arrived here recently with some machinery for a mill in western New York, and by rail the cargo was consigned for Boston instead of the other city. The error was discovered a week in advance and the Boston broker was asked to change the bill so that the goods would stay on the ship until it reached New York.

The broker learned the consignee had transferred from Boston to the New York town was made with the result from New York the ship is now in port of Boston and will unload its cargo here.

LANES OF TRAVEL

Frank S. Davis of the Waterways Association left yesterday for New York. He is to confer with officials of several shipping companies whose vessels ply the Long Island Sound. This will be held from cleaner Commonwealth pier 11 to discuss lanes of travel for navigation.

MORE PLANE MAIL

Another air mail plane is due to make a big splash in the river in Jersey City and Hoboken, N. J., today. The plane, one of the Pioneer fleet of the Boston-New York-Washington air mail service, will be launched at 10 a. m. from the Pioneer pier at the foot of Fifth street, Hoboken, and will be christened with a bottle of champagne by Miss Ruth Elder, famous aviatrix. The plane will then take off for Boston, arriving here at 12:30 p. m. The christening will be the first ceremony of its kind in the history of the Pioneer service.

SEEING THE PORT

A group of 35 Tufts College students will visit the port on Sept. 17 to view the harbor from the air. They will be conducted at breakfast by Jack Dempsey, secretary of the Boston chamber of commerce. The visit of the party will be one of the events of the week-long celebration which will be staged in honor of the 300th birthday of the Hub port.

AT MYSTIC DOCKS

The Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Canada arrived at Mystic wharf early today from Liverpool and Quebec with a large number of passengers and a full cargo. She will sail for Antwerp and Hamburg at 5 p. m. today.

MAKES RECORD

The motorship Kungsholm, flagship of the Swedish American line, docked at Pier 6, Hoboken, from New York, Aug. 21, and arrived at Gothenburg, Sweden, on Aug. 31, 10 hours and 12 minutes ahead of schedule.

In recognition of the new speed record the Kungsholm made on the trip to the Swedish port, the Grand Duke Wilhelm of Sweden presented a silver plaque to the master of the vessel, Capt. Gustaf Ericson, depicting the Kungsholm and the Swedish flagship Drottningholm. This is the highest honor of its kind that can be given to a merchant marine officer and marks the first trip to the West Indies this winter and ninth for the vessel, we believe.

TODAY'S WHO'S WHO

The subject of today's Who's Who in the Port is H. O. Lynch, foreign freight agent of the Boston & Albany Railroad.

H. O. Lynch

Mr. Lynch was born in Boston and started railroading with the B. & A. as a messenger boy in the old freight house on Causeway street. He has been in the freight department ever since, with the exception of the years he was in the service during the World War. He was commissioned a captain in the Quartermaster Corps and was stationed at Camp Devens.

Mr. Lynch has been foreign freight agent for the B. & A. since 1924. He is a member of the Boston Traffic Club and Masonic Lodge, and is one of the best golfers among the railroad men in this city. He lives in Arlington with his wife and two children.

NEW IMPROVED WHIPPET FOUR PRESENTED

The most popular low priced car ever presented by Willys-Overland, the Whippet Four, is making a further step forward in its class through a series of important mechanical improvements for longer life and artistic advancements which are expected to bring it to an even greater peak of popularity than before attained, it is declared by Curtis Bolton Whipple, president of the company.

A reason the Whippet has been [illegible] is that it has won four cross-country stock car races more than any other car in the class, it is pointed out. In addition, it has established more official records for safety and long life than any other car in its class, it is declared. Whippet sedan is the lowest priced car of its type in the world.

With a successful background of more than four years in the low-priced field, the Improved Whippet now brings forward to the front of the year's new cars in addition to those mechanical advancements first incorporated in the original Whippet [illegible]

HUDSON-ESSEX HOLD PLACE

"Registrations of automobiles as compiled by the Direct Mail Service, Inc., show Hudson and Essex in our territory to be in third place which is a position we have enjoyed for several years," says C. L. Sutter, general manager of the Henley-Kimball Co., distributors of Hudson and Essex cars.

"A popular four-cylinder car is in first place and a well-known six selling for less than the Essex holds second position. These registration figures establish the popularity of this year's product of the Hudson Motor Car Co.

"The Hudson eight introduced in January of this year, met with immediate public acceptance and today there are more Hudson eights registered than any other make of eight-cylinder car.

"With the new prices announced last week the Hudson eight is also the lowest priced eight on the market."

Highway Markers in the United States

The work of erecting standard highway markers on numbered routes in the United States is now complete. The final marker, expected to be erected at the end of this year, completes one of the largest systems of marking road, especially 97,000 miles of roads.

12 States Discard Auto Speed Limit

Twelve States in the Union, namely, Connecticut, Florida, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Michigan, Montana, Tennessee, Vermont, Wisconsin and Wyoming have discarded a fixed speed limit for motor vehicles and stipulate a rate of speed that is reasonable and proper.

New York Leads in Auto Ownership

New York, with approximately 2,750,000 has more motor vehicles than any other city in the United States. Chicago is second with 950,000; Los Angeles third with 911,000; Detroit fourth with 910,000.

TEXACO USED IN NEW COAST TO COAST RUN

Right on the heels of Captain Hawks' record breaking coast-to-coast flight in the Texaco No. 13, comes a new champion, a champion of the highways—"Stu" Hawley. Driving a stock Buick Eight, Hawley crossed and recrossed the continent in 111 hours and 44 minutes. This is 17 hours faster than the previous fastest time and 15 hours faster than Cannonball Baker's record.

Hawley left New York city at 12 1 a. m. eastern standard time, Aug. 11 and arrived in Los Angeles at 1:29 p. m. Pacific standard time, Aug. 16. The total time he was en trip was 87 hours 29 minutes. After resting only 6 hours 16 minutes at Los Angeles he began his return trip. Unfavorable weather conditions prevailed him from equaling the speed time made in the journey west. His time from Los Angeles to New York was 69 hours, 29 minutes, almost two hours longer.

Asked if he would become a professional driver, Hawley laughingly said "No." He believes that any [illegible] capable driver could equal his time if he knew the roads as well, and [illegible]

Boston's "Lucky Girl"

ONE OF THE MOST THRILLING SERIALS EVER WRITTEN — By Hazel Livingston

Cathie Is Shocked by an Unexpected Proposal of Marriage

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Catherine Paige, elder daughter in a fatherless home, secures her first position in the office of Alfred A. Farnsworth, successful engineer. In the office she meets Gordon Moore, junior member of the firm of Moore Brothers, engaged in important construction work for Farnsworth. Catherine is instantly attracted to him, and he to her, but what seems a serious love affair to her is just a pleasant episode to him, and she soon realizes that he has forgotten her.

Her earnings in the office must go to help her family, so she is not so well dressed as the other girls and is snubbed by them, particularly by Marsha Darrow, private secretary to Farnsworth. Office gossip has it that Miss Darrow is not only angling for marriage with Farnsworth, but carrying on a flirtation with the good-looking Gordon Moore as well.

However, all things drop to insignificance to Cathie when her mother falls seriously ill. She allows her sister, Ruth, to persuade her to borrow money from Farnsworth.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 7

IT WASN'T Cathie Paige's way to hesitate; she was too much her mother's daughter for that. All her life Mary Paige had faced facts and made the best of them, and Cathie, the least like her in the flesh was the most like her at heart. If she had to ask Mr. Farnsworth to advance her salary she'd do it, no matter how hard it was.

Once her mind was made up, and there was no way out of it, she could hardly wait to get it over with. He had not been in his office two minutes that morning before she followed him in and asked him bluntly if he would let her draw next month's salary now, because her mother was sick.

He hastened thoughtfully, his kind, gray eyes fixed steadily on hers. Once or twice he moved the pencils and memo pads on his desk and once he turned over the leaves of the desk calendar as if he had ceased to listen. Cathie stumbled then, and he raised his eyes to hers again and said:

"No, go on. I'm listening, my dear."

"My dear." That made her feel self-conscious. Her cheeks began to burn and she thought she saw the reflection of her blush on his smooth, florid face. But that was foolish . . . she fought down the awkwardness and stumbled on. "If you would . . . it would help so . . . hospitals have to be paid right away and we . . . we haven't the money."

Generous Loan

He took out his check book and pulled his fountain pen toward him.

"Suppose I make it $250 to start," he said. "There are always so many things you don't expect. Illness comes high."

"But I couldn't take that much. I don't know when I could pay it back. I think a hundred—"

"Don't stunt your mother's comfort," he told her. His voice was cold, and Cathie's lip trembled a little in spite of her.

"There, there . . . I did not mean to hurt you," he said kindly. His hand patted her shoulder.

Cathie picked up her note book and pencils and the check he had given her, and went out quickly, blinking back her tears. All that day while she worked the check seemed to be burning a hole in the pocket of her sweater, where she had thrust it. Sometimes it seemed to her that Marsha Darrow's sharp eyes were staring at it through the thick wool that covered it.

There were days when the Paiges waited, white-cheeked and hollow-eyed, in the hospital corridors for news of their mother. When they followed the starched and rustling young nurses who came out of her room . . .

"You think she's better, don't you? . . . You . . . you don't think she's . . . going to die?"

Asks for More

When the doctor, the busy, clever young doctor whom old Doogan had recommended, suggested this or that for her comfort, Ruth looked at Cathie and Cathie looked at Ruth.

"Whatever is best for her," they said stiffly, and toward the end of her great illness when he suggested a ward, or at least a room with two beds in it, they shook their heads sternly.

"Well, I'll ask Mr. Farnsworth," Cathie decided. "He's got it, goodness knows, and I'll pay him back at interest."

But she did not have to ask, he suggested it this time, and again Cathie walked out with the small oblong of paper burning a hole in her pocket, and the consciousness of Marsha Darrow's long, light eyes boring into her . . . asking . . . thinking . . .

And at last the day came when they took Mary Paige home and, oh, the delight of getting back to her own kitchen! You'd have thought it was a palace, the way she walked about it, flicking the oilcloth tablecloth straight, straightening a fold of window curtain, peeking into the canned goods on the shelf. I see you let the tomatoes run down . . . I must get some more the Banner ought to be having a sale about now . . . and I ought to put down some eggs, before they go up. I wonder if I couldn't have a few chickens here in the backyard . . . we'll have to economize, with all the debt to pay back . . ."

Rapid Recovery

It was so good to have her home again, to see her getting rosy and well again. To see lights in the house when they came home at night, and smell hot bread and dinner cooking. They lingered over their tea longer than ever now, there were so many things to talk about to many things to plan.

"Mr. Browning says I can get into night school next term if I want to. It pays awfully well," Ruth said, hopefully.

"Now, never you mind. I'm the grand one to economize once I set my mind to it. And now that I'm getting my strength back it'll be like the old days—I'll manage on 10 cents less than nothing. We'll soon be out of debt! Leave it to me!" Ma beamed and Ruth sighed and said: "Well—if you don't think I ought to try night school—"

Night school! Cathie took a look at Ruth, so nervous and jumpy already that spoons flew out of her fingers and the tea spilled out of her cup, onto the saucer every night. Ruth teach night school! It was a wonder she managed to keep going at day school. And if she broke down . . . but Cathie didn't dare think of that . . . there'd be no one to manage . . . they'd have to manage.

Bills Pour In

They couldn't get through September without more money. The druggist's bill came in, and the final statement from the hospital, and there was the doctor still to be heard from. If there had been a ring in the house to pawn . . . but there wasn't. Everything, from the late Edward Paige's gold watch to the silver bon-bon dish that once used to sit on the parlor table, had gone long ago. So Cathie had to speak to Mr. Farnsworth again, there was no way out.

"I hate to ask you. But I'll be able to start paying back on the first of November," she told him, and her head throbbed, her head unnaturally high.

He began to write a check.

"I'll pay back $25 on the first of November," she added recklessly, "and $50 the first of December—"

He laid down his pen. "Let me

BOSTON DAY PLANS ARE FORMED

Chamber of Commerce Wants Parade to Be Feature of Celebration

Boston business concerns were called upon today by the Chamber of Commerce to enter into elaborate plans now in the making for the celebration of Boston Day on September 17, when thousands of visitors will be here especially to see the city observe its 300th birthday.

Every business concern which can do so will assign a delegation of employes to march in the parade about Lieut. Gen. Edward L. Logan, acting President Carl P. Dennett of the Chamber declared.

Those firms which find it impossible to be represented are asked to decorate and illuminate their places of business on that day and evening, or to recognize the notable occasion in some other appropriate manner.

"The army of prospective visitors look forward to a pageant and demonstration of unprecedented magnitude, which will summarize for them not only the splendid historical and cultural background of Boston, but also the leadership Boston has always taken in industry, commerce and finance," said Mr. Dennett.

"Fifty years ago, on the occasion of the observance of Boston's 250th anniversary, leading business establishments were represented in a magnificent parade, which set a new standard for civic demonstrations of its kind.

"The Tercentenary celebration offers business houses of all kinds a significant opportunity to give deserved recognition to Boston's splendid progress in the fields of commerce and industry in which they themselves have contributed so notable a share.

PLAN TO SURPASS WEST

"We hear so often of the progressive spirit and great civic demonstrations of the West that we are sometimes tempted to believe we in this part of the country are unduly conservative.

"Here is one opportunity for business interests to manifest their pride in Boston and their appreciation of the benefits which the city has given them.

"Recent trade reports indicate that New England has come through the present business depression as well as, and possibly a little better than any other section.

"This is a noteworthy tribute not only to the virility of this part of the country, but to the public spirit and enterprise of our business men. This demonstration on September 17 may well serve to call attention to both."

They are Mrs. Hazel Curnane Gow and Miss Mildred K. Curnane, graduates of the Portia Law School, who are in business with their father, Daniel E. Curnane, well-known Malden attorney.

The sisters, who dress alike, were graduated from Malden High School in 1917. Hazel Curnane went to Portia Law School and passed the bar examination in 1921, going into business with her father. Mildred first studied music but later went to law school, and passed her examination in 1924.

SHIFT HALTED FOR CROWLEY RETURN AND HE'S BACK

Outlying Districts Due for a Change, but Hultman Has Not Indicated His Plans

Although another drastic police department shakeup was expected by the rank and file with the return of Superintendent Michael H. Crowley from vacation today, Commissioner Eugene A. Hultman announced that he had no plans for immediate action.

During the superintendent's absence of two weeks, [illegible] shakeup had been mentioned frequently by Commissioner Hultman with the statement that something would happen when Supt. Crowley returned.

"I am not stationary in my ideas and sometimes I change my mind after thinking over a situation," said Commissioner Hultman, when asked today about the expected changes.

"I guess we'll have some transfers in the future all right, but I have no immediate plans. And it's not good policy to talk too much in advance."

From other sources it was learned that the police head is considering changes which will primarily affect the outlying divisions.

According to reports, the changes will be at least as drastic as previous sets of [illegible] made by Commissioner Hultman.

CARRIER QUITS AFTER 35 YEARS

Ending 35 years of service as a letter carrier, John A. Glavin, 65, of 80 Mayfield st., Dorchester, will retire next Saturday.

During his years of service, Glavin estimates that he has tramped a total of 125,000 miles and has worn out approximately 150 pairs of shoes for Uncle Sam.

The mail carrier was born in South Boston, August 3, 1865, and has lived all his life in South Boston and Dorchester.

He has been attached to the South Boston, Dorchester Center and Uphams Corner postoffices, and is now at Uphams Corner.

When Glavin first started carrying the mail, the old gravel and dirt sidewalks were out from six to eight pairs of shoes a year, he said today, but since granolithic sidewalks have become universal, a mail carrier can "get by" with three or four pairs a year.

Glavin is married and has two married daughters and one son who is at home.

TOURISTS FAVOR BOSTON AS THE NEAREST PORT TO EUROPE

STEAMSHIPS SHOW GAIN OF 64 P.C.

Port Authority Now Working to Establish Another Line in Service

Steamship travel from Boston to foreign ports showed an increase of 64 per cent for the first five months of this year as compared to last year, the Port Authority today announced.

In the second of a series of weekly conferences Richard Parkhurst, secretary, said that 4100 people left Boston by water, as compared to 2500 of the same period in 1929.

"When the figures are available for the Summer," he continued, "we may expect an even more gratifying increase. Those who are booming travel by way of Boston are doing an excellent job."

NEW YORK GAINS LITTLE

The occasion for this report was an announcement in the French American to the effect that New York had reported a five per cent increase for the first five months of this year in steamship travel.

Another important subject discussed by the Port Authority secretary was one that he said is endeavoring to bring an American steamship line here for transatlantic service.

"We now have service by the British, Germans, French, Italians and Greeks," said Parkhurst, "and those of us who believe in an American merchant marine feel that there is a field here for a first class American line, such as the U. S. Lines."

Mr. Parkhurst said that the Port Authority was working toward having a "cooperative scow" used in the harbor, to carry off rubbish which at present is dumped either in the harbor or outside.

"The refuse dumped outside often floats ashore to our bathing beaches," he continued.

The secretary said he had written President Elmer Black of the Down Town Service Club. Ewell replied that the matter has been referred to the marine affairs committee, headed by Capt. Herbert Evans, towboat owner for study and report.

MERGE BANKER PROTECTIVES

The Bankers' Electric Protective Association of Boston, which furnishes burglary protection extensively in New England, has been acquired by the American District Telegraph Co. of New Jersey, it was announced today by President C. C. Johnson of the telegraph company.

Philip Stockton and Allan Forbes, local bankers, and Walter R. Whiting, former general manager, will continue on the board of the acquired company. C. C. Johnson and F. A. Ward of A. D. T. will become directors.

Dance, Walk, Live to Be 90, Somerville Man Advises

That's what William St. George Little of 23 Cleveland street, Somerville, has done.

What makes the latest nonagenarian stand out more is that he only dances every evening, as many who like to dance do but takes a walk every morning, as most who dance do not.

This man, who remembers Abraham Lincoln, very well and was a close friend of William Withers, director of the orchestra at the Ford Theater, who was in the pit when Lincoln was shot, does not confine his dancing to the days he well remembers.

He likes modern dancing.

Fresh air and a light diet.

These are also among his prescriptions for life beyond four score and ten.

"It's very prompt at my meals," he laughed. "I have not missed a meal in 25 years."

His work, caring for the lawns on Spring Hill, Somerville, and the grounds of the public schools, has kept him in the open air and painted his cheeks with the glow of youth.

Fishing trips are his main hobby.

HUB HUNT FOR CLUE FUTILE

Following an investigation of Boston ancles of the Chester (Vt.) death mystery, in which Mrs. Catherine R. Packard returned alive to reveal that she was not the woman buried under her name, Vermont officials declared they could unearth no clues.

Atty.-Gen. J. Ward Carver and State Detective Edward C. Brown have been flooded with information about missing persons, but none of it had proved of use.

The Vermont officials are anxious to locate the "H. Carlson," who sent them a letter, postmarked Boston, in which he indicated that the woman might be that of a Matilda Anderson who came to this country from Sweden and early last year told friends that she was going to marry a man named Gilbert. When last heard of, she was living in Bethel, Vt.

Child Asks Police to Find Doll Stolen at Parade

Lylian Madill, of 17 Richardson st., Somerville, is only 17 years old but even this early she has conducted that hero worship doesn't pay.

While she watched the Dilbey Parade in Somerville yesterday someone stole her blue doll carriage and big baby doll.

"I was standing across from the Y. M. C. A.," writes Lylian to this newspaper, "and when the parade passed, I went to get my carriage and it was gone.

"I hope the one that has it is honest annd will return it to me, as it was the last doll I will ever get. I am 11 years old, the oldest of six brothers and sisters and I wanted to keep it as I thought a lot of it.

Seek Kin of Aged Woman in Morgue Killed by Auto

Tall worn hands!
Silvered hair!
Ten cents!
And a woman lies cold in death — unidentified!

This description, on a cold, bleak form of the Southern mortuary, tells the tragic tale today—the fourth day—of somebody's mother unclaimed.

She was struck down at Cleveland and Washington sts., when she stepped to the street when the green flashed for vehicles.

Somewhere in this land of ours a son, a daughter, a husband or even a cousin or grandchild has failed to miss the venerable woman that faces a Potter's grave.

That is the reason that Medical Examiner Timothy Leary wants to locate some relative to claim the body of 60 years on a cold slab in the mortuary.

A commuter's ticket for the Boston to Lowell line indicates that the woman has friends, at least, in that city.

Her clothing is not expensive, but neat. A black dress, black coat and black straw hat. An undergarment of gray and plaid cotton. High laced shoes, quite worn. No teeth. Two gold earrings, her only jewelry.

She slaved for someone. Who is it?

NEW PAVING ON SUMMER ST.

Story in American Brought "Skippy" Back Home

Miss Ethel C. Mahoney, of 7 Tremont st., Stoneham, in a letter to the Boston Evening American, expresses her thanks for the recovery of her dog Skippy which disappeared last week.

The mistress of Skippy, a two-year-old Spitz, went to Gloucester on a vacation and Skippy set out to find her. On Saturday morning he was seen wandering in the Saugus woods, and was captured after a chase, and turned over to a Melrose woman who also had lost a dog.

On looking through the American the woman saw a notice of the disappearance of Skippy.

Seeks 'Maid of Erin' Honor

IRISH SMILE BIG POINT

Blue eyes, black hair and a dimpling smile, chief requisites of the committee for the girl which will be selected "Maid of Erin" for the float parade of Boston's Tercentenary celebration, are all possessed by Miss Katherine Mahoney, latest candidate for the award as the city's typical Irish girl.

Katherine will be interviewed by A. L. Vollman, director of the Tercentenary finals, today and should rank high in the list of the contestants for the honor of representing Old Erin, the home of her parents.

She was born in Charlestown, graduated from Charlestown high school and is now employed in the office of a Boston firm, but the mark of the "Auld Sod" is forever stamped in the lilt of her laughter and the smile of her eyes.

She lives with her parents in Warren st., Charlestown, and is 20 years old. Her mother's maiden name was O'Donovan and Cork was the home of both her parents.

Whalen Denies Winning $3000

Although Mayor John J. Whalen of Chelsea denies winning $3000 on a 65-cent lottery ticket, his friends today continue to congratulate him on his reputed good fortune.

The story also proved of keen interest to the anti-Whalen faction. There is a proposal before the city government to provide the Mayor with a $2500 automobile. It is argued that the Mayor should buy the car from his reported winnings.

FEDERAL AUTHORITIES INVESTIGATE BOSTON TIPSTER SHEETS

U. S. OFFICIAL WILLING TO AID STATES

Promises to Help New York and Massachusetts in Stock Inquiry

By BERT FORD.

Several cases involving tipster sheets are being probed by the Federal authorities in Boston, according to an announcement made today by Asst. U. S. Dist. Atty. Haven Parker.

Parker's statement followed a two-hour conference with Deputy Atty-Gen. Watson Washburn, head of the securities division attached to the Attorney General's department in New York State.

"I was in conference with Mr. Washburn for some time," said Parker. "We discussed several cases involving tipster sheets which come within our federal jurisdiction. We promised Mr. Washburn and his department in New York the fullest co-operation and he pledged every possible assistance in return, not only in relation to these cases now pending, but any others that may arise.

HELP EACH OTHER

"The cases which we are investigating are also being inquired into by the Massachusetts authorities. We are all going to assist each other."

Parker's statement to reporters was the first official information that the federal authorities had joined forces with the New York and Massachusetts authorities in probing stock frauds arising from the activities of tipster sheets.

Deputy Atty-Gen. Washburn came from New York on Monday to get the aid of the state and federal departments here in prosecuting cases which his department started.

Crisis of the fraudulent activities are alleged to have taken place in Boston. Washburn took the deposition of W. Ivan F. Carter, former clerk of the Financial Debater Criterion, published in Boston, before F. Delano Putnam, acting as a special commissioner for the New York Supreme Court in Boston, on Tuesday. Washburn plans to return to New York tonight.

MENACE TO STATE

Atty.-Gen. Joseph E. Warner today declared that stock frauds had become such a serious menace in Massachusetts that drastic action by the government was necessary to throttle the evil. He denounced brokers and salesmen who rob widows and the aged of their last dollar and leave them objects of charity.

Warner's attack followed a London conference with Washburn.

Investigator George A. Foster of the Securities Division of the Public Utilities Department admitted to Warner and Washburn that the department had never attempted to supervise unlicensed stock brokers and salesmen, as exclusively announced by the Boston Evening American yesterday.

AMEND LAWS

"Thousands and thousands of dollars are being drained from the purses of citizens who cannot afford to lose it," said the attorney-general. "The people have rights. They are entitled to protection. If the laws are too anaemic, let's change them.

"We have a pretty good Blue Sky law in Massachusetts. I am not prepared at this time to criticize that law or its manner of enforcement, but something is radically wrong.

"Prosecution of such offenders should not be left to policemen unversed in the technicalities and ramifications of such transactions. Such cases should be handled by persons competent to deal with such involved subjects.

"In the security division attached to the attorney-general's office of New York, there are ten lawyers and ten investigators, and in the summer three extra lawyers are engaged in stock fraud cases. They have an appropriation of $200,000 to carry on the work over there.

$25,000 FUND HERE

"We were informed by the Department of Public Utilities that they have to work with an appropriation of but $25,000 with a much smaller staff. I don't care to say at this time whether I would recommend that the securities division be transferred from the Public Utilities Department to the Attorney General's department in this State as is the case in New York, but I do think individuals found selling securities without licenses should be prosecuted as vigorously as are licensed brokers and salesmen who transgress the law.

Under the present system in Massachusetts the attorney general is obliged to sit almost powerless unless specific cases are reported to him, while thousands are swindled all over the State. There was the case of the woman over 70 who lost every dollar, and that of a school teacher who was induced to part with every dollar of her life savings."

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a kitchenette apartment and "the best are advertised daily in the For Rent columns."

MET MARTYRED PRESIDENTS

The distinction of having shaken hands with the three martyred Presidents of the United States, Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley, is one of the proudest memories of James H. Greene of Quincy, who was a drummer boy in the Civil War.

Greene met Lincoln while playing the drum with the 11th U. S. Infantry band at a review in Washington in 1861. When he went to shake hands with Lincoln, the Great Emancipator said,

"You're a smart young soldier to leave your home to go to the war for three years. Always love your flag, my boy, and may God bless you."

Too young to fight Greene with his two brothers joined the band of the 11th U. S. Infantry, accompanying the soldiers to the Antietam, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville and Gettysburg campaigns. Young Greene acquired surgeons in the hospital acting as an aide at operations.

Three years later after hostilities they were sent home to recruit and James Greene then joined the navy serving four years on the Ohio in the Pacific.

He is past commander of Daniel Green Post No. 2 of South Boston and was a familiar sight drumming when the G. A. R. had their annual encampment. He was also in those encampments with the late James A. Garfield and William McKinley, the other two martyred American Presidents.

Five Old Ladies Go Riding But Another Is Waiting

While the five old ladies who belonged for an automobile ride happily started on their trip to Nantasket, more offers of automobiles for them continue to come into the office of the Boston Evening American today.

Gen. Herbert Chamberlain, business manager and Arthur Mason Marquis, Toronto, original writer of the feature, offer cars for the outing and will be the hosts today of the old ladies.

The trip was scheduled to start at 2 o'clock and was to include Nantasket Beach and Hull and among the shore from Pemberton to Green Hill.

Another car will be accepted for the pleasure of a big, aged French woman, who has spent many years for the entertainment of those encompassing what he most loves, feeding pigeons on the Common.

Madame Corsette wants to see how it feels in a car along the Esplanade and imagine she is again traversing the boulevards of Paris.

"Every day I dress up in my best clothes and wish I was riding out like other women in cars. But I shall probably never have a chance to play the grand lady now," she once told a secretary of the Catholic Bureau of Charities.

Think how small a thing can transform the world for this aged lady.

If merely riding along a wide boulevard can open again the book of youth in the gayest capital in the world for this old lady thousands of persons better off financially will envy her the simple zest to happiness.

Madame was once a creator of millinery modes and her success encouraged her to seek larger returns in America. But she never has an independent income for personal and financial reverses have long since taught her to wish for the simple pleasures of life.

Won Praise From Lincoln

JAMES H. GREENE, Civil War veteran of Quincy, who has shaken hands with three martyred presidents, Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley, cherishes the advice given him by the Emancipator at Washington, in 1861. "Always love your flag," Lincoln told him. Photos show Greene as a drummer boy and in his G. A. R. uniform.

NORMA SHEARER LIKELY TO BE STARRED IN SUSAN LENNOX FILM NEXT

SIGNS NEW CONTRACT SOON

By LOUELLA PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

(Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service.)

Los Angeles, Aug. 27 — Young Mr. Thalberg, age three days and some hours, is so much in the limelight that his mother's career is pretty apt to be forgotten unless something is said about it. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, in spite of the excitement of Irving Jr.'s arrival, is not letting the plans for Norma Shearer's return to the screen be forgotten.

When Norma signs a new contract the chances are she will be asked to read that fascinating novel, "The Fall and Rise of Susan Lennox," which Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has just purchased. This book, the dramatic story of 25 years ago, by David Graham Phillips would suit Miss Shearer admirably. It is her type of story requiring as it does, emotional and dramatic ability of a high order. Also it is a story that would give Norma a chance to wear clothes.

SHADES OF yesterday! "An American Tragedy," so widely discussed as a book and so thoroughly panned as a play when Theodore Dreiser wrote it a few years ago as being considered as a motion picture. Paramount has owned the rights for a long time, but the story had never met entirely with the approval of the Hays organization. What with other books and plays just as suggestive being produced by other companies, Paramount, it said, has now asked permission to film the Dreiser novel. I suppose there will be a change in the story to meet censorial requirements. Yet, it is pointed out, a very definite lesson is taught in the story, and one that is most poignant, because, like Zola's novels it is so realistic. Wonder if Phillips Holmes will get the role?

WHOOPEE" settled Eddie Cantor's mind in the mind. Although he has been in other pictures, including "Kid Boots" and "Special Delivery," it was "Whoopee" that really proved just how good his comedy can be on the screen. He is due back here by Sept. 5 to be present at the premiere of "Whoopee" which opens the last of September with Eddie as master of ceremonies. Eddie also signed a five-year contract on the strength of "Whoopee," will make one comedy a year for Goldwyn. He has the distinction of being the first comedian under contract to Sam Goldwyn.

300 MILES OF FILM USED IN EPIC

Nearly 300 miles of film—enough to form a solid ribbon of celluloid from Boston to Philadelphia, were consumed in the making of "Hell's Angels," thereby establishing a new record for footage during the long period that Howard Hughes' drama of the air engaged the attention of the entire motion picture industry.

Of this great total Boston audiences are seeing only 12,000 feet in the finished picture at the Tremont, beginning next Monday night, so what a great share of the millions spent in the undertaking might be said to have been tossed away on the cutting room floor. But the young producer-director who poured his inheritance into his pursuit of an ideal is satisfied that the money was wisely spent.

From the process of ruthless editing and concentration of prize shots, "Hell's Angels" has emerged the most magnificently thrilling picture of its day and one likely to stand as another "Birth of a Nation" as a milestone in screen achievement. It is reaping a golden harvest in two theaters on Broadway and will doubtless show a 100 per cent return to Mr. Hughes on his investment.

An explanation of the extravagant consumption of film is found in the fact that as many as 35 cameras were in action simultaneously in shooting the thrilling air sequences. Only a few feet from some of these survived the painstaking search for perfect photography and the entire footage of others was discarded. The cost of the raw film and developing was more than $100,000—a figure for which some successful pictures have been completed. The use of technicolor for some of the more important sequences also contributed to the large sum spent for celluloid.

Unit Due Back Soon

Gordon Borrowed

Gavin Gordon, leading man opposite Greta Garbo in "Romance," has been borrowed by RKO for a prominent part in "The Silver Horde." He is now on location with the unit in Alaska. Upon completion of this assignment, Gordon is to join the roster of another big producer.

MONTGOMERY IN NEW ROLE

Robert Montgomery, dramatic jack-of-all-trades! That might well be the designation of the youthful screen actor, who, in just a few pictures, has not only become one of the best-known juveniles in the business but who has played one of the most varied types of roles. He plays Nick, the millionaire's son, in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Son of the Gods."

Robert Montgomery

Montgomery, which is at Loew's Orpheum next week, Montgomery was born in New York, appeared there in "Dawn," "Arlene Dice" and other plays. He was hailed as a "discovery" as the result of his work in "Three Live Ghosts," the talking picture which brought him to the front rank of footlights. He played the college hero in "So This Is College." He is far cry from that to the convict in "The Big House," but the same Bob Montgomery played that, too.

SCOLLAY STAR GIVES WOMEN GOWN TIPS

Found at last—a man who can tell women what to wear! Believe it or not, many many women look to Francis Renault, headliner at the Scollay this week, to what they should wear, for Renault displays one of the most extensive and gorgeous wardrobes ever seen on the stage. He wears the gowns so perfectly that many a gasp is audible from the audience.

Included in his array of clothes, is a shawl over five hundred years old, and which was worn, it is said, by the famous Queen Isabella of Spain. He has a Chinese kimono that includes practically every color in the rainbow, but so carefully blended that a most harmonious effect is realized.

Renault does not wear a wig in his impersonations, as his own hair is cut in boyish style, giving it a sophisticated boyish-bob effect. His impersonations are well nigh perfect, especially the one in which he appears as Queen Marie of Roumania, which is a signal for great applause. He has a marvelous singing voice, which is a clear falsetto, and is a most humorous contrast to his bass talking voice.

He entertained for five years overseas during the World War with Sir Harry Lauder. For the past four or five years he has been headlined in vaudeville both in America and Europe.

LIKES WORK IN TALKIES BEST

Directing a motion picture is more exciting than piloting an airplane, according to Rudy Cameron, who has done both. Cameron, a former naval aviator, motion picture producer and Wall Street broker, says he'd rather be handling a megaphone than appearing before the cameras.

"The task of making audible pictures is incomparably more interesting than that of producing silents. It is a new art and its possibilities of development are unlimited. I can imagine nothing more interesting and worth while than to give all of one's time to the advancement of talking films."

HEARST NEWS SHOWS MANY FEATURES

Credit talking pictures or whatever you wish, but the truth of the matter is that American customs and American ideas are slowly but surely winning favor among the people in other countries. This is amply demonstrated in the Hearst Metrotone News this week which shows a group of pretty Nipponese maidens dressed in typical American costumes, costumes singing one of late popular tunes in Japanese. Not satisfied with that, the finale shows them doing a fast "hoe dance."

Several other interesting events are catalogued in this Hearst News showing at Loew's State. The women will be especially interested in the artistic presentation of the new fall modes as created by Redfern, the famous Parisian authority, while they will be inspired by a sight of the Lourdes' Shrine in France, where the summer season witnesses a record number of cures. Discarded crutches, braces and casts hear mute testimony to the wonderful miracles worked by prayer.

Other items include the King and Queen of Belgium reviewing the army at the centennial fete at historical Naumur; a group of young swimming stars frolicking in the surf at Panama and Miss Eleanor Medill Patterson, editor-in-chief of the Washington Herald, in a short talk.

Collier and Blackmer

Buster Collier and Sidney Blackmer have been added to the cast of First National's "Little Caesar," which already includes Edward G. Robinson, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Ralph Ince and Thomas Jackson. Mervyn LeRoy will direct.

"Squealer"

Jack Holt and Dorothy Revier have been assigned by Columbia to be in the leading roles in "The Squealer," based on the stage play of the same name.

"Dark Star"

William Bakewell has been assigned a role in "Dark Star."

MET FILM HAS MANY STARS

The New York musical stage has contributed four of the featured players in the cast of "Let's Go Native," big fun and music frolic to be seen and heard at the Metropolitan tomorrow. Jeanette MacDonald, Jack Oakie, Jamie Hall and Skeets Gallagher all established reputations in Broadway musicomedy productions before entering moving picture work.

Hall was the first to leave the stage for the screen, Oakie and Gallagher were next arriving in Hollywood shortly before Miss MacDonald made her debut. Hall was Cary Grant's leading man in two pictures, Oakie and Gallagher did solo parts in the talkies before being signed for the production "Close Harmony."

Miss MacDonald's debut was in "The Love Parade" as Maurice Chevalier's leading lady. Her next part was the romantic lead in Dennis King's "The Vagabond King."

"Social Errore"

Paramount has added Clifford Dempsey and Clarence Burton to the cast of "Social Errors."

see. You are getting $100 a month now, aren't you?"

She nodded, utterly miserable.

For a long time he sat as if staring at the half written check. "Was it occurred to you that it will take you years to pay this debt?" he asked. "Do you realize the enormity of what you have undertaken?"

She said through her dry lips: "You said you were not in a hurry."

"So, I'm not in a hurry," he said, still speaking in that slow, studied monotone. "But you are young. It is a great sacrifice for a child like you."

"I'm not a child, Mr. Farnsworth. I'm nineteen. I was nineteen last month."

"That seems very young to me. I'm nearly sixty. Did you know that?"

"Oh, that isn't old," she murmured politely. "Mother's nearly fifty, and she doesn't seem old to us."

Boss' Proposal

The man's florid face reddened "So I seem old enough to be your father. I am, of course. I have a son, thirty."

Cathie moved uncomfortably. She was at a loss for an answer, at a loss for what to do. She wished Mr. Farnsworth would stop talking and write the check, if he was going to. And she wished, oh, how she wished that all this humiliating money trouble was over.

After a long time, Mr. Farnsworth said, still looking at the plate glass top of his desk:

"I had not intended to speak of this now . . . You are very young, Catherine Paige. So young that I hesitate to speak at all. But at least it would be no worse for you than waiting all your youth in poverty, and that is all I can see ahead for you, if you go on as you are. Younger children . . . a sick mother . . . your own health to be considered . . . Catherine, instead of returning the money you owe me, let me take the responsibility. Let me pay the bills. Take care of the family. Everything. Catherine, my dear . . . I'm asking you to marry me. Don't you understand?"

Tomorrow—Cathie guards her secret for the time being.

The "Boston Theatre" urn, or the Jackson urn, as it is sometimes called, is an important exhibit in the collection of historical silver at the Museum of Fine Arts. Its graceful simplicity is a fitting background for the "most elegant theatre in the country," engraved on the front. The urn, made by Paul Revere, bears the inscription

"The proprietors of the Boston Theatre to Gen. Henry Jackson, Esq., one of the trustees, 1796."

Charles Bulfinch, the architect for this first theatre in Boston, was also one of the trustees. Gen. Jackson was the organizer of the first military company in Boston and was governmental agent for the building of "Old Ironsides", for which Paul Revere furnished the copper and brass. The urn had been in the possession of nine different owners throughout its 130 years when it was given to the Museum by Henry D. Sleeper in 1926.

Boston Evening American is publishing daily photographs of interesting antiques. Suits Softly Tailored Are Smart

By ANN ARDEN

WITH FALL just around the corner, and at least one substantial outing purchase necessary, one of the new soft tailored suits is a wise choice for fashion wise women.

THIS CONSIDERS autumn as well as later fall, has not a light look covering secret warmth. Many wise dressed women find that nothing takes the place of a good-looking suit for autumn, and if you belong to this discriminating group you will rejoice in the lovely coverings, fabrics and fashionings of the suits for fall.

* * *

TWEEDS ARE given first place, and when you see them they'll have your vote too.

FOR MORE formal suits, suede-like fabrics are the rule, but blouses in most cases continue to be tucked in.

THE THREE-PIECE suit pictured is in the newly smart green, the fabric soft dull finish woolen. The skirt has shallow circular inserts, two-placed, the coat is in the new long tunic length, slightly longer in back, self belted, of normal waistline, and boasting clever cuff details. A luxurious bolster-roll shawl collar is of beaver fur. The blouse is of silk crepe in a lighter tone of green, bows of the material tailored into front and sleeves.

THE HAT is of brown felt, having cavalier folds across front and right side—the left side draping into bow of the material.

BROWN SUEDE strap pumps are worn.

IN GLOVES black native browns and some very dark green is generally approved for the new mode. Off whites are new and as yet exclusive for daytime wear.

ANN ARDEN will answer questions concerning clothes, social customs, or fashions generally. Address your questions to the Boston Evening American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser or to station WHDH.

COOK-COOS

by the Cook

Training schools for dry agents are being established throughout the country, and everybody ought to help the students get an appropriate college song. Something like this—

Snoop....pooh pooh pa doop
Snoop for the flowing bow...el
Slunk...and snatch a drink
And shoot the gink who throws it in the sink.

All the dry sleuth colleges might have football teams . . . but of course the rules should be changed to permit the players to tip-toe instead of run.

And the college yell should be whispered.

About the only time modern-bred youth is stirred to action is when he reached for another cigarette.

According to John R. Summers of the Society for the Suppression of Vice, the law now regards books as improper if they have a tendency to "corrupt the morals of those whose minds are open to such influences."

But in this high speed civilization, it would seem advisable for everybody to get their corruptible over with as soon as possible.

Aunt Bella's Answers Are Guaranteed to Maintain Their Original Luster Throughout the Ages

Q.—Listen, ain't one—you'd better lay low for a few days 'cause there's a certain guy's wife out lookin' for you.
—A Pal

Ans.—

If a "certain guy's wife" thinks she can intimidate a peace loving homebody by getting her pal to send threatening letters through the United States mail, then Aunt Bella holds little hope for the future of America. This woman might try understanding her husband a little better, and then maybe she wouldn't drive him into the arms of the more attractive and (now!) sympathetic Aunt ("Naughty Eyes") Bella.

"The modern home," says Genevieve the kitchen cynic, "is a room equipped with almost everything except a reason for staying in it."

Tris Becomes Masterful With Judy, Who Runs Away, Shocked

Chapter 31

JOE RAN up Judy's arm. Joe circled her heart, numbed her lips. She closed the hand bag with a snap, her fingers shaking against the metal. The mystery which followed Tris had caught up again and hung over them both now, throwing a sinister shadow across that glowing hour.

Had the narrow piercing eyes met hers in the lace square of mirror? She lowered them to hide her own without making her, with a reflection more terrible than this.

She found courage to glance over her shoulder, but the face was gone. Rain, driving rain beat against the window and behind this the sky was gray. Blank sky, rain deserted dock and the scarred face been there at all?

Tris Watched
As Stranger Stared

Such a curious thing to come and go so swiftly. Why, it was a cigarette from the extended paper package and fingered by Tris's own fine hand and then vanished. Or had she imagined it?

But there was no imagined pressure against her shoulder as he crowded close. The scarred face was not waiting. To watching me, too, as he would her before? Oh, I hope he hasn't. I'm! M-e-e-e-e-e-e!

"You're not frightened, sweet? You want to be by yourself? You'll dine with me tonight? I want you to see Quebec with me first. The Frontenac is like a castle out of medieval France. Good-by, Judy—little Judy—"

He did not kiss her again—only folded her hands and held them against his heart, bending down with the curve in his face.

She sat there a moment after he had gone, flushed and trembling. It's too much! It's too strange! I don't understand! I never was—

No gentle he was, so eminent the other Judy's soaring dreams never had imagined one like him.

Yet she'd watched more intimate from him than even the first Judy had felt between the doors of her fancy. Perhaps time will change that. It was as Tris said, I suppose, a matter of days.

One thing she knew: that the other Judy never could come again. The other Judy had been a pale little ghost who moved nowhere and took on the look of reality as the deeply buried longing for romance denied grew and Phantasm might be fulfilled.

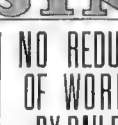
And now that longing had been quelled in fact the girl darkling had come down a path of bright sunlight to meet it. Tris had come down a path of bright sunlight to meet it. Tris had come down a path of bright sunlight to meet it. Tris

BUSINESS BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN INDUSTRY

Oil Industry Improved by Stabilization

R. C. Holmes Believes That Outlook Is Better for Rest of Year

By M. S. Rukeyser



Gen. W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, who arranged for the listing of the company's stock on the Boston Stock Exchange, which will be the first time that the Pennsylvania has had its shares traded in on any exchange outside of New York.

Gen. Atterbury is at present vacationing in Labrador, and is not expected to return until September [illegible] perhaps tell what some experts describe as 'The Lure of the Labrador,' for that rugged land much of it undiscovered and perhaps best known through the work of Sir Wilfred Grenfell furnishes the setting for an ideal vacation for those the modern crowd.

A Wall St. writer states

"Gen. Atterbury typifies a new epoch in the history of the Pennsylvania, characterized by aggressive policy and development in this era of railroad consolidation and sparring for position the Pennsylvania has been built on the defensive and distinctly on the offensive. Three figures stand out in Pennsylvania leadership, J. Edgar Thompson, who laid its foundations of greatness, A. J. Cassatt, who shaped its power and prestige, and the present head.

* * *

"Tall and spare and of dominant personality, Atterbury has the bearing of a military officer. And he can be affable enough on occasion. When he was questioned in Boston last April by the New England railroad committee regarding reported Pennsylvania purchases of New Haven and Boston & Maine stocks, he promptly disarmed the inquisitors by a very frank and complete statement of the holdings of both the Pennsylvania Railroad and the Pennroad Corp. Incidentally, the last report of the Pennroad Corp. stated that it had added to its New Haven holdings and New England still probably want to know later just how great the interest in New England's major line may have subsequently become."

Possible Market Leaders Are Noted by Spectator

By the WALL STREET SPECTATOR

One of the contributing factors [illegible] opinion of utility interests, [illegible] plans have carried such an important influence on the prices of many utility stocks are believed to have been deferred until late months. In the recent recapitalization proposal to be taking place [illegible] Consolidated Gas of New York, American Gas & Electric, American Power & Light, Electric Bond & Share, Electric Power & Light [illegible] Morgan group, namely, [illegible] Products, General Electric, American Superpower, United Light & Power A, Standard Gas & Electric A, Standard Power & Light A, United Corporation.

Interest bullish on Lambert & Myers is evident that it is selling out of line. They point out that earnings on the stock this year will be about that on the American Tobacco new issues, approximately $8.50 a share; that the dividend rate is about the same, but Lambert & Myers is selling at a discount of more than 26 points. Of course American Tobacco is selling at a price for the tobacco companies on average earnings this year. Liggett & Myers, however, has excellent management and a sound investment rating. I believe it a good buy around current levels. It has been acting much better market-wise in the last week.

NO REDUCTION OF WORKERS BY RAILROAD

By FRANK H. MEEOOS

Constructive news for the bullish [illegible] came out of the railroad [illegible] yesterday after the [illegible] Pennsylvania Railroad [illegible] New Haven stock, passed [illegible] that there [illegible] 200 extra men [illegible] were [illegible] the Pennsylvania [illegible] Conditions," Mr. Holmes pointed out to me, "have been improved by the stabilization program. The producers of California and Oklahoma have succeeded quite well in reducing their production of crude oil to approximately the market requirements, while the producers in Texas are now actively engaged in a similar effort and with some prospect of success. If California production can be held to approximately 800,000 barrels a day, the Oklahoma production of 550,000 to 575,000 barrels, and if the Texas producers can reduce their output to approximately 750,000 barrels, the desired state of balance will be achieved and some reduction in stock accomplished.

"The primary necessity of the industry is to strike a balance between production and consumption in order that material draft may be made on the excess stocks now carried. The unit drilling of oil structures is highly desirable to avoid the drilling of unnecessary wells to secure a larger recovery of oil and to prevent waste. The desired program can be accomplished under the existing laws of the principal oil producing states, although in some particulars these statutes might be improved.

"The present gasoline prices do not allow a reasonable margin of profit but the situation may be improved considerably by reducing the production of crude so as to balance it with consumption."

From the information that is available here, I am inclined to think that, while the Northwest has suffered a deterioration as compared with the agricultural prospects of July 1, it has not been as hard hit as other sections of the country, and that it has passed through the worst heat and drouth of many years better than other agricultural sections that have been subjected to the same adverse conditions."

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

News of increased steel production [illegible] of the railroad was the most constructive in many weeks. After the news appeared there was no necessity for "strong arm" methods to put up stocks. The bush of bears so freely and that work very nicely. Naturally, the issues in which there was the largest short interest were among the principal beneficiaries.

The reaction which many considered need to attract investment buying on a large scale appears to have been overlooked at least [illegible] Whether it will pass out over the switch to the main tracks remains to be seen.

Powerful Pool in Radio Corp.

Although professional sentiment is sharply divided on the stock, Radio is quite likely to be a leader on the upside if the general market [illegible] strong. A powerful crowd is [illegible] on the bull side of the stock.

Gen. Theaters Is Again Active

For the first time in months, Gen. Theaters Equipment figured in the most active group. Its strength undoubtedly reflected the recent report by Fox, of which General Theaters is a large stockholder.

Politics Worry Nervous Holders

International Telephone seemed to be nervous holders affected by the South American political troubles.

Vanadium Short Interest Large

Rally in Vanadium has been scored chiefly at the expense of the short interest, which is one of the most extensive in any listed stock. Friends of the stock continue to express confidence in substantially increased earnings developing from the new plants.

United Aircraft Backing Is Good

Continued recent strength in United Aircraft confirmed the [illegible] that the buying is more than speculative in character. A powerful group is sponsoring the stock.

Gillette Offer May Be Altered

Firmness in Gillette, while due principally to short covering was also a reflection of report the company may alter its offer to Auto Strop. There was some lack of [illegible] among the Gillette [illegible]

Nickel Prepares for Big Business

While International Nickel stock seems to be awaiting expansion of the stock offering, the company, according to a director, is prepared for large-scale business. Its new plants already are in operation and the cost of copper output permits the company to show a substantial profit even at the current low price for the metal.

United Corp. Is Heavily Bought

Buying of United Corporation was on a large scale but it will take sustained strength in this issue to furnish convincing evidence that its sponsors have turned bullish on the market.

General Foods' Merchandising

Those who have been most optimistic on General Foods for some time and placing importance on the plans of the company for merchandising frozen foods in the future assert that the management of the company has an elaborate program calling for the introduction of this product in the fall. One of the large cities will be selected for the first step and thereafter other important centers will be selected as outlets. There has been a rumor of the possibility of distribution through the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co.'s chain of stores, but the report lacks confirmation.

Woolworth's Sales Show Improvement

Improvement has been shown in sales of Woolworth in the past few weeks. This has led officials of the company to anticipate a better comparison on the business volume with the same months last year. Relief from the unseasonable hot spell of recent months is believed to have been responsible for the better business which has been [illegible] in the past fortnight.

Vanadium's Move Found Disturbing

In part the market interests consider the wide fluctuations which [illegible] occurred in Vanadium as disturbing. Traders have made the stock one of their favorites for manipulation staging demonstrations against the short interest at times which caused sharp advances in the issue. When those who were short on the rise decide to cover on advances try to liquidate, the stock reacts briskly. As a result most conservative observers are strongly advising clients to keep out of the stock on either side of the market.

American Can Active in Canada

Advices from Vancouver, B. C. state that demand for cans from the northern British Columbia [illegible] canneries has been so heavy of late that American Can Co. has been working its plant at Vancouver 24 hours daily. The [illegible] is [illegible] [illegible] American [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] stock will be one of the logical [illegible] when market conditions improve.

Smelting Buying by Well Informed

Buying of American Smelting & Refining continues for the account of well-informed investors who recognize the company's diversity of interests protect it against [illegible] from a decline in the price of copper.

Drouth Aid to Coca-Cola Sales

Countrywide scope of the recent [illegible] boosted Coca-Cola sales approximately 12 per cent during August to date over last year, it is estimated in quarters close to the company. This increase should make the current three months the best for a similar period on record in past years the summer was the most profitable from an earning standpoint than other seasons. Last year's third quarter net was equal to slightly better than $2.90 a share on the common. The showing for the first nine months of 1930 is expected to be in the neighborhood of $10 a share on the common against $8.90 on the same 1929 period.

Gulf States to Act on Payment

Gulf States Steel dividend will be taken up by directors next month. Despite reports that the management is in favor of maintaining the $4 rate trade conditions may force a readjustment to a lower base.

Record Electric Equipment Exports

Disregarding market action of electric equipment manufacturing company shares, there is no doubt but that the industry is holding up better than others. Demand for such products both for domestic and foreign consumption is satisfactory. Official government figures showed that exports of electrical appliances from the United States in the first half of 1930 reached a new high record. The largest gains were in radio apparatus, electric refrigerators, flashlight batteries, washing machines, vacuum cleaners and power distribution transformers.

Sugar Action Plans' Effect

Plans to place artificial restrictions upon the production of sugar strengthened the market for the commodity but did not create any fresh interest in shares of the leading refining companies.

Discussing Crude Oil Price Cut

A few weeks ago when talk was heard of a possible cut in the price reduction in the fall the general belief in trade circles was that no such action would be taken until about the middle of October. Now the same interests readily admit that a cut may be made sooner than first anticipated. They agree that it will be practically impossible to maintain current quotations during the winter months when consumption of gasoline is at a low point. Some of the selling in oil stocks recently has been based on less satisfactory trade conditions than had been predicted only a short time ago.

CURB MARKET UTILITIES HOLD LEAD

New York Aug 27. The resistselling pressure shown by public utility shares in the Curb market in recent sessions attracted further support today. Prices of an extensive list of utilities progressed toward higher levels as the rest of the market remained quiet and firm.

From the start of the session public stocks showed a constructive trend and short sellers who had precipitated a reaction were forced to bid above the previous [illegible] price. There was a flurry of selling toward midday, but liquidation was well absorbed and proved only a temporary setback.

Electric Bond & Share, American Cable & Traction, Duke, American Gas & Electric, Hydro Electric Service and American Foreign Power warrants were strong spots in the list, rising 1 to 2 points during the early hours. American Superpower, Niagara Hudson Units, Light & Power A and Central States Electric were quiet and firm.

Ford Motor of Canada was a strong feature of motor stocks. Technicolor was well bought. Dewey moved irregularly, turning reactionary around midday. Good buying of Fox Theaters A continued and the stock registered a small gain. A O Smith Aluminum Company of America, Columbia Pictures gained a point or more.

Natural Gas stocks were active. Appalachian was firm. Lone Star Gas advanced. Turnover of petroleum stocks was small. Standard of Indiana and Cities Service held firm.

Demand for Goldman Sachs trading improved. Other Investment and Holding Company stocks were little changed.

Curb money renewed on the curb at 2½ per cent.

The largest gains were in radio apparatus, electric refrigerators, flashlight batteries, washing machines, vacuum cleaners and power distribution transformers.

New Haven Gets Added Equipment

New Haven Railroad has recently [illegible] Company of Canada for one of 100 [illegible] for its passenger service between New York and Boston, to cost $100,000. The [illegible] has been made in the daily press of Mexico City that large amounts of gold pesos have been smuggled into the United States recently, despite a Mexican law which bars exportations of gold.

Two Investment Trusts to Merge

Directors of United States Shares Corp. and United States Shares Financial Corp. approved a plan whereby union of the two will be effective through sale of assets to a Maryland corporation to be called United States Shares Corp. Meetings of stockholders have been called for Sept. 6 and 10 respectively.

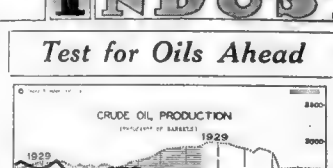
Test for Oils Ahead



Average Daily Production of Crude Oil in the United States Charted.

By JOHN W. LAIRD
(Irving Fisher Service)

New Haven, Aug 27—For the third week in a month crude oil production has fallen below a daily average of 2,500,000 barrels. Getting below that figure has been the subject of much prayerful effort within the industry for months, and the reductions which have been the rule since early in July have come at what is normally the peak production season.

A little less than a year ago the output hovered close to 3,000,000 barrels daily.

The weakness of the oil situation lay in the relatively low cost of production of crude oil once the wells were in operation, plus the fact that divided ownership shows common pools encouraged the slogan "Every man for himself."

The openings of new gushers consequent to continued drilling operations have given constant anxiety a slight gain over July, 1929.

Then too well absorbed and proved only a temporary setback.

Electric Bond & Share, American Cable & Traction, Duke, American Gas & Electric, Hydro Electric Service and American Foreign Power warrants were strong spots in the list, rising 1 to 2 points during the early hours. American Superpower, Niagara Hudson Units, Light & Power A and Central States Electric were quiet and firm.

Ford Motor of Canada was a strong feature of motor stocks. Technicolor was well bought. Dewey moved irregularly, turning reactionary around midday. Good buying of Fox Theaters A continued and the stock registered a small gain. A O Smith Aluminum Company of America, Columbia Pictures gained a point or more.

Natural Gas stocks were active. Appalachian was firm. Lone Star Gas advanced. Turnover of petroleum stocks was small. Standard of Indiana and Cities Service held firm.

Demand for Goldman Sachs trading improved. Other Investment and Holding Company stocks were little changed.

Curb money renewed on the curb at 2½ per cent.

SILVER CRISIS IN MEXICO

Mexico City, Mex., Aug 27 (INS)—A silver crisis similar to the one which faced the United States just prior to the present century confronts Mexico this week.

The continued decline in the rate of exchange between gold and silver money has become so serious that President Ortiz Rubio has called a series of conferences in an effort to find a solution to the problem. At the end of last week silver money had reached its lowest level since 1926, although financiers and government officials desperately sought to stop the decline.

The exchange rate has varied between five and eight per cent, for several days on the silver peso as compared with the gold peso. This makes ten pesos in gold worth from 10.50 to 10.80 in silver. President Ortiz Rubio hopes to ascertain at the conferences this week the cause for the sharp drop in silver money. Charges have been made in the daily press of Mexico City that large amounts of gold pesos have been smuggled into the United States recently, despite a Mexican law which bars exportations of gold.

Imports of Shoes for Month Lower

Lynn, advices declare imports of women's shoes from Czechoslovakia were 46,000 pairs for July last against 230,000 pairs for July a year ago. Imports of shoes of all kinds totaled 64,000 pairs for July of this year against 287,000 for July a year ago. The Czech shoes averaged $2 a pair, against $2.65 for [illegible] shoes made in Lynn. The duty of 20 per cent brings the cost of the Czech shoes up to $2.40 a pair, or 15 cents under the Lynn price. So the tariff committee of the Lynn Boot Manufacturers' association will ask for an increase in the rate of duty from 20 to 30 per cent on women's shoes.

American States Profits Increase

In the 12 months ended July 31 profit of American States Public Service Co. available for interest, reserves and federal taxes, amounted to $916,514, a gain of 10.5 per cent over profit of $829,309 on similar basis in preceding year. July gross revenue totaled $166,636, compared with $169,599 in same month of last year.

Initial Dividend for New C. & O.

Chesapeake & Ohio declared an initial quarterly dividend of 62½ cents on the new $25 par common, placing it on a $2.50 annual basis. Thus is equivalent to the $10 annual rate paid on the old $100 par stock recently split on a four-for-one basis. It is payable Oct. 1 to stock of record Sept. 8.

Regular semi-annual dividend of $3.25 was declared on the preferred, payable Jan. 1, 1931, to stock of record Dec. 8, 1930.

General Unemployment Shows Big Drop

Chart shows the number of applicants for every 100 vacant jobs and positions registered at the State and municipal employment agencies in 32 important States and the District of Columbia during the past ten quarter-year periods since January 1st, 1928. Source: Employment Service, U. S. Dept. of Labor.

Nearly every index to employment covers only factory workers. But this one, showing the number of applicants per 100 available jobs of every description, is perhaps one of the best indicators of general unemployment in the United States today. The second quarter of 1930 shows a considerable improvement over the first quarter, and is nearly down to the level of the first quarter of 1928.

NEW YORK STOCKS

Today's Complete Prices and Dividends

MANY ISSUES SET HIGHS FOR MOVE IN WALL STREET

New York, Aug. 27—Many issues sold at new highs on the current move in Wall st. today.

The market entered the final period holding steady and with trading fairly quiet.

PROFIT TAKING FELT

Speculators for the rise found the stock market still determined to take administrations of bullishness in small and cautious doses.

After a substantial extension of yesterday's gains during the first hour, profit taking cropped out in considerable volume, and bears unsettled the list by searching out weak spots. Operations for the advance were strenuously pressed forward, but the price movement became somewhat irregular.

Trading slackened considerably after the market turned irregular, but total sales aggregated 2,200,000 shares, the largest in about two weeks. The closing tone was irregular.

Allied Chemical rose 8½ and held near the top, but Delaware & Hudson, after rising 6 points, lost most of its gain. Several advances of 2 to 3 points recorded during the day were mostly lost, but utilities held up well.

Such issues as U. S. Steel, American Telephone, Radio, American Can and General Electric closed about steady.

Bullard was rushed up 4 points in afternoon and McKeesport advanced more than 2 on reports of large tinplate orders. Warner Bros. and Columbia Graphophone were strong features in the afternoon.

Vanadium dropped about 5 points and Oliver Farm common and preferred and Bohn dropped 4 or more to new lows. Kroger, Gillette and International Telephone were weak.

During the early rise, in which utilities and specialties were prominent, Allied Chemical rose 8, Delaware & Hudson 6 and Atchison, Eastman, Worthington, Safeway, American & Foreign Power, Electric Power & Light, Simms Petroleum, New Haven, Sears Roebuck and American Tobacco B 2 to 3.

These advances were reduced later, although good buying reappeared in some of the merchandising, amusement and manufacturing shares. Vanadium was heavily sold, breaking more than 4. Oliver Farm common and Bohn Aluminum dropped 4 to new lows, and Oliver Farm preferred sold off about 7 before rallying.

TURN OF TIDE

Professional operators appeared determined to take the most cheerful tenor of business and trade news. Although the indicated improvement thus far is slight and bankers or statistical services predicting any spectacular acceleration of business in the fall, the fact that the tide appears to have turned instilled renewed bullish enthusiasm.

The day's trade reports were not in agreement as to the extent of the improvement in business evident since Aug. 1. Some of the steel trade reviews were a little contradictory. "Iron Age" estimated that steel mill operations for the country at large had improved in the past week but 1 per cent, placing production at 55 per cent of capacity, against 52 a fortnight ago.

"Steel" agreed with Dow, Jones & Co., which yesterday placed operations at 58 per cent, against 54½ a week previously.

"American Metal Market" said that operations now approximate the rate reached in July, which was calculated by the Iron and Steel Institute at slightly above 56 per cent.

CONSUMERS BUYING

The steel trade reviews indicated, that consumers are now willing to buy well into the future, evidently feeling that prices have touched bottom, while producers are reluctant to sell much at the current low levels.

An encouraging development was an improvement in building operations, F. W. Dodge Corporation's daily average for the first three weeks of August showing a slight decrease over the extremely low levels of July. Freight car loadings for the second week of the month showed a gain of about 2 per cent over the previous week, a little more than the normal seasonal advance, but the total was still the lowest since 1922.

The American Federation of Labor estimated that unemployment in August had been down 5-10 of 1 per cent from July.

Credit conditions reflected further undertone, perhaps the first reflection of the month end holiday requirements. Call money still held at 2 per cent.

In the commodity markets, corn, wheat and cotton futures showed rather narrow changes.

R. C. A. Victor plants at Camden, N. J., are now turning out about 2200 radio machines a day. Payroll has been steadily increased. At present the company is employing 16,000 people, of whom 13,000 are engaged in the manufacturing end.

Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies S. S. Lines reports for six months ended June 30 net income of $1,173,978 after depreciation, taxes and charges equal, after allowing for dividend requirements on the 5 per cent preferred, to $4.16 a share on the 195,952 shares of no-par common, against $1,852,083, or $7.56 a share, in the first half of 1929.

Cotton Steady in New York Market

New York, Aug. 27—Cotton futures closed steady today, 3 points lower to 1 higher; October, 11.63-64; December, 11.83; May, 11.93. New contracts—October, 11.42-44; December, 11.58-60; January, 11.69; March, 11.85; May, 12.00-02; July, 12.17-19. Spot quiet; middling, 11.70.

Solvents Orders Stock Dividend

Commercial Solvents Corp. declared a dividend of 2 per cent in common on the common, and regular quarterly dividends of 25 cents, both payable September 30 to stock of record September 10. Six months ago a similar stock payment was made.

Grains Are Lower in Chicago Market

Chicago, Aug. 27—Grains closed lower today. Wheat was off 1⅞ to 1¾c; corn ⅛ to 1¾c and oats 1⅛ to 1⅜c. Rye finished 1¾ to 3½c down.

WNAC to Carry the Miniature Broadway Show at 10 O'Clock

The first production of "Rainbow Revels," Columbia's new revue feature, will be presented over WNAC tonight at 10 o'clock. This feature first revue written especially for radio to be produced in the same manner as a Broadway show, was originated by Raoul Marlo, who wrote the book, lyric and music. The musical director is Claude MacArthur.

The premier will be a special occasion. Critics have been invited to attend and four announcers will preside. Frank Knight will be master of ceremonies and Ted Husing, Don Ball and David Ross will interpolate characteristic highlights into the complete inclusion. Henry Burbig, Helen Nugent, Brad and Al, Harriet Lee, Lillian Rickman, Marie Gerard, Arlein Dickson, Georgia Backus, Don Clark, Dave Elman and Master Singers. Miniature of stage scenery and electric lights will be one of the novelties of the production.

Named Registrar

Guaranty Trust Company has been appointed registrar for an additional 825,817 shares of common stock, no par value, of the International Nickel Company of Canada, Ltd.

A Winner

THE GAUDILY DRESSED young man in this picture is Donald Novis, the Atwater Kent Foundation prize winner for 1928. He is a tenor and since winning that coveted prize he has become famous in Paramount-Public pictures.

Concerning Radio

Edited by BILL WHIPPLE

Perhaps the following information may be a little premature, but it seems important enough to acquaint our readers with it at this advance date nevertheless. Arrangements have been completed whereby the New York Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra, co-operating with the Columbia Broadcasting System, will be heard over the nation-wide network in a series of Saturday and Sunday concerts, beginning October 5.

We understand that in its 88 years existence this will be the first time the orchestra has been on the air. Twenty-seven concerts with Arturo Toscanini, Erich Kleiber and Bernardino Molinari conducting; children's concerts and five young people's concerts directed by Ernest Schelling, comprising the major portion of the Philharmonic season, will be broadcast exclusively over Columbia's network.

The following schedule of coming sports events for the fall is also worthy of perusal as necessary. But we advise sports lovers to clip out this schedule and put it where it may be referred to at any time. The noted Ted Husing, sports announcer, will be at the microphone at all of these games, which will be broadcast over the Columbia network.

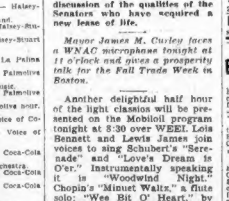
Sept. 27—Army-Notre University, West Point.
Oct. 4—Southern Methodist-Notre Dame, South Bend.
Oct. 11—(World Series).
Oct. 18—Army-Harvard, Cambridge.
Oct. 25—Notre Dame-U. of Pittsburgh, Pittsburgh.
Nov. 1—Princeton-Chicago, Chicago.
Nov. 8—U. of Illinois-Army, New York.
Nov. 15—Yale-Princeton, Princeton.
Nov. 22—Penn-Cornell, Philadelphia.
Nov. 29—Army-Notre Dame, Chicago.

Ha! We told you so! Didn't we say in rather a round-about way yesterday that possibly we were all wet about television? Didn't we admit that we weren't quite responsible in our upper story, but at the same time declared we were sort of a seventh son of a seventh son, and could look into the future—as far as television is concerned, anyway? We sure did!

Well, then, just read the following which came on the wire only a few minutes ago. The television era surely is drawing. "Chicago, Aug. 26 (INS)—The dawn of a new day in price fight promotion is anticipated in the scheduled television broadcast of the Tuffy Griffith-Stanley Harris heavyweight bout here tomorrow (Wednesday) night. The broadcast is to be made over station WSXAP from 8 to 8:30 p. m., C. D. T. For the benefit of those not equipped with television receiving instruments, the bout is to be broadcast over station WMAQ. Bill Hay, announcer, will give a blow by blow description of the contest.

Once more we are going in reverse to the Annual Radio World's Fair to be held in New York City, from September 22nd to the 27th. It is interesting to know that both the National Broadcasting Company and the Columbia Broadcasting System will have a large, glassed-in studio each at the exposition, from which programs will be put on the air beginning at 2 p. m. and ending at 11 p. m.

By reason of the glass partitions the public will be enabled to see the artists at work. Including artists' fees, wire tolls, costuming and network costs, these programs will account for the expenditure of $300,000, it is estimated.



Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, who has won four world championships and seven American League pennants, the last in 1929, and who, for eighth a tough road, will be interviewed by Grantland Rice on the Coca Cola program over WEEI at 10:30 tonight. It is hoped that Connie will devote a little of his allotted time to the discussion of the qualities of the Senators who have acquired a new lease of life.

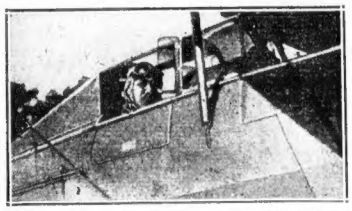
From Shaggy Ponies to Swift Airplanes

A Great Change Since Genghis Khan



FIELD MARSHAL CHANG HSUEH LIANG, FLIER—NO "SHAGGY" PONY FOR HIM

This picture is for those that indulge in a somewhat unusual exercise called "THINKING."

It shows His Excellency Field Marshal Chang Hsueh Liang, youngest governor in China, who succeeded his powerful father, Field Marshal Chang So Lin, as ruler over China's three northeastern provinces.

The "thinking" part of this pictures comes in when you remember that there are far more than 400,000,000 people in China, including tens of millions of men ready to fight, and indifferent to death.

And those men are adopting our Western methods.

In old days when savage men from the East, Tartars principally, came marching against Europe under fierce leaders, Genghis Khan, Tamerlane, Attila, and a host of others less well-known, they came slowly over the earth's surface, walking on foot with strange weapons, bows and arrows, lances, javelins, their leaders and their best fighters riding on shaggy ponies.

This picture shows that if they come again they will NOT come on ponies or on foot, as they used to do, eating up the countryside as they advanced like a cloud of locusts, often defeated by lack of food, and the slow resistance of populations conquered.

If Asia ever marches against Europe again, ITS FORCES WILL COME THROUGH THE AIR WITH FIGHTING PLANES, BOMBS, MACHINE GUNS, AND HAVING STRUCK THE GREAT CITIES THEY WILL GO THEIR WAY.

That is the thinking part of this picture.

What is probable of a possible European invasion from Asia is more probable as regards an Asiatic invasion, coming over the Pacific Ocean against this country.

THE FIELD MARSHAL PLAYS GOLF. OBSERVE THE KNEES

In the lower picture you see the same Chinese ruler playing golf, the same Chang Hsueh Liang that sits in the airplane.

At golf he plays well. And you notice that he plays with short breeches and knees bare, that seem a little like the "Ziegfeld Follies" to us. Those bare knees prove the common sense of the Chinese. Like the Eskimos they know that it is important for the air to reach the body. And they arrange their costumes at the knees or elsewhere so that the air CAN reach the body.

Eskimo women, in a temperature 40 below zero, arrange for the cold air to penetrate their furs and supply to the pores of their skin the oxygen that the body needs.

After looking at this picture showing how easy it is to build airplanes and manufacture TNT and other high explosives and poison gases, you might write to your two Senators and to your one Congressman and tell them you think this country ought to be protected in the air.

If there were any probability, or even possibility of a swarm of locusts coming over the Pacific or the Atlantic to eat up our fields, how busy the Government would be.

The Agricultural Department would issue bulletins. "Flame throwers" would be manufactured by the thousands. Insect experts would devise new poisons and death traps.

There is every possibility of an invasion through the air, not of locusts, but of airplanes bringing dynamite and poison, and nearly everybody says: "Of course it won't happen."

That's what everybody said in 1914.

But it DID happen.

It will happen again, for men are still savages, and the strong are ready to pounce on the weak.

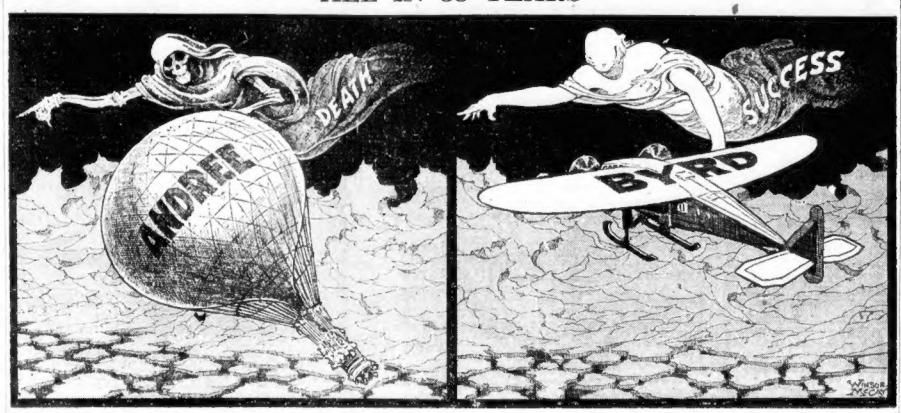
Heaven help the nation caught unprepared.

If it happens to us this country will have reason to remember what Solon, one of the seven wise men said to Croesus, the world's richest man, who showed him his gold:

"If any man comes having better iron than you have, he will be master of all this gold."

If any nation comes, having better AIRPLANES than we have, it will do to our cities and to our national treasury what the locusts do to the green grass.

ALL IN 33 YEARS



It was glory and certain DEATH thirty-three years ago; it is glory and SUCCESS today.

THIRTY-THREE years ago the courageous Andree went to his death in the North, admired and pitied by real men, laughed at by fools, because he believed that "some day men would fly."

He felt that somebody should start, and willing to risk his life, he lost it.

In a balloon, not dirigible, trusting to the wind to carry him over the Pole, he and his companions flew to destruction.

The fool said, "Man's place is on the earth; he will never fly."

They forgot that whatever men can IMAGINE they can DO.

Within a few years the Wright Brothers, also laughed at, before they succeeded, had proved the possibility of flying under control.

Since then Byrd has flown safely over the North and South Poles.

Lindbergh has flown from New York to Paris in a little more than thirty hours.

And, crowning achievement of aviation, up to date, is that of Captain Hawks, champion flier of the moment, to have traveled across this continent from ocean to ocean in twelve and one-half hours.

WHAT MEN CAN IMAGINE THEY CAN DO.

And their power of imagination grows with achievement. What was heroism and certain death thirty-three years ago is now regularly organized transportation all over the face of the globe.

When men start they travel rapidly.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Aug. 26—When society reporters are stumped for the low down on high sitters in the "400" world they do not consult Social Registers or Almanacks de Gotha.

They consult Theodore—Theodore of the Ritz, most famous of all headwaiters and an encyclopedia of the elect.

For more than 20 years in New York, London, Paris, Berlin and Constantinople he has been humoring rich students of gastronomy. He has bestowed his oddly imperious bow of obeisance upon dukes, princes, Wall Street millionaires and other possessors of the earth, including kings.

Brillat-Savarin declared feeding kings was equivalent to ruling empires. This was the excellent exaggeration of an excellent cook, but certainly Theodore has a world of his own which he rules—amiably, suavely but ever firmly.

Theodore, it strikes me, is at his best at lunch time. When he stands at the portals in gray morning suit with a lapel nosegay of white and eye glass ribbon of black—every inch the aristocrat. He suggests the poised eagle, ready to swoop down and carry something desirable away.

When the last light in his cafe is dimmed at night, Theodore slips into business clothes, leaves his post by a private entrance, steps into a purring limousine and is whisked away. An hour later he is among the flowers, books and collection of rare paintings at his Westchester estate.

It was Lucius Bebe who wrote of Theodore: "He differentiates urbanus from rusticus, separates civilization from barbarism." I shall remember Theodore for an amazing display of trigger thinking. On a sweltering night, years ago, Theodore's roof was packed. A debutante who had ten many cocktails was swaying about the dance floor with an embarrassed escort. Suddenly she slipped out of his arms. Somewhere a quick hand-clap and lights were out. A few seconds idter, when they came on, the lady was on a chaise longue in an anteroom. Theodore, calm, impeccable, was bowing to arrivals at his silk rope. Few realized, least of all the debutante, his quick thinking saved the lady not only from scandal but possible tabloid headlines.

Theodore's full name, incidentally, is Theodore Szarvis. He was born in Hungary, and one of his close friends is Ferareno Molnar, Hungarian dramatist. A standard character in many novels of E. Phillips Oppenheim is a headwaiter whom many recognize as Theodore. The British writer and Theodore are friends of the maitre d'hotel's London days. Theodore married an English lady, and they are parents of three children, one a son, has made strides as an artist.

In the tea garden on the Vendome side of the Paris Ritz is the celebrated Clement, a head waiter who adjusts a monocle to an appraising eye and sports the most unusual silver goatee anyone ever saw. It parts in the middle and sprouts into two complete dollar-sized loops. He, unlike the youngish Theodore, is the imperial old gentleman who has won dominance over all head waiters of the world. Unless you belong to royalty he does not escort you to a table. He just points the way.

My favorite head-waiter, however, is Si, ebony black, who before going to his Green Pastures presided over the dining room in my father's country town hotel. Quails in aspic, the chill of Burgandian wines or other epicurian delights were unknown to him. If Si liked you, he sat you at the drummer's table—the one with the bowl of fruit. And inquired:

"Squirrels, beef heart or liver?"

H. G. Wells Writes

ON "THE SCIENCE OF LIFE"

NOW, ALL through this orderly development the genes in the chromosomes are exercising a regulating supervising action. As we noted in the first chapter, there is not a corner of the body that cannot be altered and modified in some way by these active little units in the chromosome outfit.

H. G. Wells

We must remember what a gene is. We grow accustomed to using convenient but in a sense so misleading shorthand phrases like "the gene for the blue eyes" or the "albino gene," that we tend to think of the genes as in some way little replicas of the characters with which they are concerned and of the gene outfit as being a sort of compressed organism with a part corresponding to each part of the body.

But that idea is wholly false; it is really a survival of the preformationist ideas of the eighteenth century, which so worked on the imagination of one microscopist that he actually drew a human sperm with a homunculus, a miniature man, squatting within the head!

The genes are something structural and chemical in the chromosomes, and that is all we know about them materially. The rest of our knowledge is based on their observed effects. The characters they produce are the end-results of physical or chemical influences that they exert.

The gene for blue eyes has nothing of blueness about it—nothing suggestive of eyes.

It is a chemical unit which modifies the train of events leading to pigment-formation in the eye. Moreover, the genes are scattered about on the chromosomes; there is not a particular region where all the eye-genes are, another where all the foot-genes are, and so on.

In the fruit-fly the color of the eye can be modified by any one of over 20 different genes, which are scattered about at random over the chromosomes; and the same can be said of other thoroughly investigated cases, like the coat-color of rodents. The relation between gene and character is by no means a simple matter.

It is an interesting fact that many genes produce their characteristic actions by influencing the speed of processes occurring in the body.

You Can't Take Hic Out of a Country

Sir Beetsworth of Soxdown Manor let his hair down and had a good cry when the committee suggested that he was walking too long on the same spot.

The committee requested that Sir Beetsworth of Soxdown Manor make the usual test of balancing himself on a chalk line.

Sir Beetsworth accepted the longitudinal challenge. He said: "I will traverse the chalk line to prove that I am sober."

"But I will not do it without a parachute strapped on my back."

The committee was topped by Earl Cann of Rockingham-on-the-Porch. The earl was amazed at Sir Beetsworth's demand for safety devices while scampering up a weat-bound chalk line.

Sir Ben thereabouts admitted that he may have been slightly scrambled, but claimed that only made him a different kind of an egg.

Sir Ben said, "Being a member of Parliament is almost the same as being a tree-sitter except that you get paid for it.

Sir Lloyd George denied seeing any members drunk in the House. We hope that he also looked out in the yard.

England may sneer at our Senate but no senator has ever appeared on the floor drunk. That's because he rolls himself up in a rug.

It seems that legislation is about the same the world over, under and sideways. When the cat's away mice ain't there either.

Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Forest Fragrance

COMING THROUGH the woods—tawny dust, soft as pollen, spurting like smoke before my feet—I come to a certain turn in the trail and stop. Here the light's a syrup, honey gold. Pine rise, dark as thunder, on their coppery shafts. Oak leaves bleach and gather in pale coral drifts. Shadows fall—splattered wine on ochre earth. Above, through tunneled twilight, there's a gleam of blue. But better ever than the color, more poignant and personal is the smell of the manzanita.

Elsie Robinson

Always at this point in the trail there is a fruitiness like dried apples in the air. Unless you know the secret you would never connect this rich fragrance with the manzanita. For, at this level of the Sierras, the manzanita is not a sightly bush. It lacks the waxy beauty of the lowland madrones, with their varnished red trunks and glossy leaves, and the small, neat loveliness of the shrubs on the heights.

It is here, a rangy creature—shaggy bark and catch-as-catch-can foliage. If it smelled of anything you'd expect plug cut. But instead it has the perfume of pot-pourri in peach-blow jars.

Nor is this the only fragrance. Indeed, all the trail is perfumed. There is the pitchy redolence of the pines—the sachet of the oaks—the pungent musk of "mountain misery"—and, in the Fall, like a thick, amber tide, the flooding odor of the tar weed. In looks, the tar weed is even more disreputable than the manzanita. A sprawling, sun-tanned flower, loafing all over the lot. But, by some gypsy magic, it smells of cinnamon and cloves, allspice and gums for which there is no name.

But quicker and more significant than all other perfumes, there is the breath of the wood earth itself. For this dust is deeply fragrant. No plough has ever disturbed it. No automobile has tainted it. It is still as God made it, potent and inexpressibly sweet from the touch of His modeling hand.

Forest fragrance—it is the friendliest thing, when once you have discovered what it's all about. Sometimes, when I am lonely, and neither books, nor my work, nor building the new stone wall is enough for me, I come to this place and stop. Stop and close my eyes and wait . . . very still. Then, presently, one by one my friends, the pine, the oak, the tattered weeds, creep close and salute me with their living breath. And to me these various aromas are like different voices, different personalities.

For all living things have personalities—weeds and trees as well as men. And indeed I think these forest creatures have the loveliest and truest of all personalities. They live honestly, without borrowing or pretense, rooted in soil, giving themselves freely to the sun and wind, the rain and snow. Theirs are the simplest and most fundamental of experiences—but out of these common processes, each one distills its own particular expression, different from all others.

Few human beings are wise or brave enough to do that. We make a great clamor about personality, but we seldom dare to grow our own. We are in terror of being ourselves—afraid someone may discover that we are nothing but scrub oak or tar weed. We feel we must contrive, by hook or crook, to be taken for orchids or gardenias. So we copy and pretend and mimic—and end up by being a synthetic combination that God wouldn't recognize as His child!
